

NFO Official Admits Group Kept Difference In Hog Sale

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

A National Farmers Organization (NFO) official testified Wednesday that on at least one occasion the organization has pocketed the difference between what livestock was sold for and what the producer received.

That revelation came out at a hearing held in response to action taken against the NFO collection point at Friend by the State Department of Agriculture.

NFO officials are fighting efforts by the Agriculture Department and the Legislature to get the farm group licensed and bonded under the 1975 Nebraska Livestock Dealers Licensing Act.

Daryle Holle, custodian for the Friend collection point, conceded under questioning by department attorney Bob Ensz that an NFO member brought 38 hogs to the Friend site for shipment to a packer in St. Joseph, Mo.

Price Higher

Instead, Holle sent the hogs to a slaughterhouse in Sioux City. The price paid by the Sioux City packer was higher than what the producer expected from the St. Joe packer.

However, Holle said the producer was paid the St. Joseph price and not the actual sale price.

Holle said the producer eventually received the difference, but Agriculture Director Glenn Kreuscher said the producer was not given the difference until his agency brought the matter to Holle's attention.

"Had I known about it, he would've gotten it," Holle said.

Other highlights in testimony Wednesday included:

—Holle admitted that the Friend collection point has issued checks to producers from its custodial account which proved to be uncollectable.

However, he said that was only a temporary condition and that all checks have been made good.

—A letter from the U.S. Department of Agriculture indicated that the NFO is licensed and bonded as a livestock dealer under the Packers and Stockyards Act.

Lee Sinclair, NFO attorney, said that the licensing was made under protest. Neither side has won, though, he claimed.

—Livestock owned by producers who are not

Man Not Member

Holle acknowledged that he has told Kreuscher that he was aware one producer was not an NFO member but that he shipped the livestock anyway to get the man to join.

Such occurrences were described by Holle as "rare."

—Two NFO members who have supplied the department with affidavits concerning activities at the Friend collection point have been served with a notice that action has been initiated to expel them from the organization.

Sinclair acknowledged the action has been taken because the pair "interfered and disrupted" NFO activities.

Kreuscher delayed a ruling on whether he will seek to have the NFO licensed, after Sinclair asked for time to furnish additional information and to review the tape of an earlier hearing.

Sinclair asked for 30 days; Kreuscher refused to allow an extension beyond Jan. 29.

The NFO claims it serves only as a collection point for shipment of livestock owned by NFO members. The state, however, claims the group is a dealer because it charges a fee for its services and the payment from the packer goes to the NFO custodial account for reimbursement to the producer instead of directly to the producer.

A hearing was held Dec. 4. After the hearing, Kreuscher determined the action should be taken against the individual collection points instead of the NFO as a whole.

Ford: Budget 'Realistic'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford unveiled his proposed $394.2 billion budget for fiscal year 1977 Wednesday, saying it "would arrest a spending trend that increasingly threatened our national economic stability."

The budget, tailored to nurture a gradual but sustained rehabilitation of the economy, proposes increases for defense spending, cutbacks for some welfare programs and higher Social Security taxes.

Some Democrats immediately criticized the chief executive's proposals.

Rep. Brock Adams of Washington, chairman of the House Budget Committee, said the budget would add to unemployment rolls and "take from those with low incomes and give to the big corporations."

At a ceremony in which he signed two copies of the budget document, Ford said, "we are committed to keeping the level of federal spending within responsible, affordable limits."

He said his budget "reflects on every page the common sense, the new realism, the better balance between public and private initiatives and between the various levels of government."

The proposed spending level would leave a deficit of $43 billion, the eighth in a row but a reduction from the record $76 billion expected this year. The budget concedes an unemployment level averaging 7.7 per cent this year, second highest (after 1975's 8.5 per cent) since World War II.

"This is not a policy of the quick fix; it does not hold out the hollow promise that we can wipe out inflation and unemployment overnight," Ford said in his budget message.

And, true to his State of the Union promise to seek new balances between government spending and economic activity, between individuals and government and between the states and Washington, the Ford budget was replete with expanded benefits for some Americans and smaller benefits for others.

In contrast to last year's budget, Ford did not propose limiting cost-of-living increases for Social Security recipients. But workers would have to pay a maximum of about $119 in increased Social Security taxes next year.

Another 14,000 uniformed armed-forces personnel would be enlisted to raise total manpower to 2.1 million and complete expansion of the Army from 13 divisions in 1974 to 16 divisions this year. But the civilian work force would be cut by 26,000, some bases probably would be closed, enlistment bonuses would be trimmed and service families would lose their cut-rate purchase privileges and commissaries.

Federal health-insurance programs for the aged would cost less for persons with serious illnesses, assuring them they would have to pay no more than $500 for hospital bills and $250 for doctors' fees compared to the $1,664 the government estimates they might have to pay for a 150-day hospital stay now. But participants who encounter a hospital stay and fees would have to pay $125 for their 12½ days instead of the $104 they pay now.

Individuals and corporations generally would pay lower taxes. For a family of four earning $15,000 a year, the Ford budget proposals would cut the full-year tax bill by $227 from the 1975 rates now in effect.

But federal subsidies covering all school lunches would be restricted to children from families earning less than the poverty level — currently $5,038. Jobless Americans would get 39 weeks of unemployment benefits after March 1977, compared to 65 weeks now, and the number of welfare recipients likely to be forced to take a job would double to 1.3 million.

Ford had said at the outset that every budget "reflects the President's sense of priorities. It reflects his best judgment of how we must choose among competing interests."

He asked for an $8.3-billion increase in defense spending to a total of $100.1 billion to finance the manpower expansions and the purchase of new nuclear weapons, 15 naval vessels and the first of the Air Force's new F16 air combat fighters.

Ford proposed foreign aid outlays for 1977 which would total $5 billion, down from an estimated $6.6 billion in 1976. The foreign aid budget includes $739 million for military assistance, down from $2 billion in 1976.

"Assuring our nation's needs for energy must also be among our highest priorities," said Ford. He proposed a $783-million increase in energy spending to $3.375 billion, with $285 million of the increase going for research and development on conventional atomic energy.

He again asked Congress to underwrite $100 billion worth of private energy investment, although Congress showed little interest in the proposal last year.

On the domestic side, Ford's budget proposals were keyed to a consolidation of 59 categorical grant programs into a catch-all block-grant system covering four areas: health, education, children's nutrition and community social service for the poor.

White House officials contended the efficiency of blending the programs together would permit maintaining service at higher levels than possible with the same amount of money spent in several smaller doses.

Here's How Pie Is Sliced

Washington (UPI) — Here is where the budget dollar would come from and how it would be spent under President Ford's proposed $394.2 billion budget submitted to Congress Wednesday.

Where it comes from:

Individual income taxes — 39 cents (up 9 cents from 1976).

Corporate income taxes — 13 cents (down 1 cent).

Social insurance receipts — 29 cents (up 3 cents).

Borrowing — 11 cents (down 4 cents).

Other — 8 cents (down 7 cents).

Where it goes:

Benefit payments to individuals — 40 cents (up 1 cent from 1976).

National defense — 26 cents (down 1 cent).

Grants to states and localities — 15 cents (down 1 cent).

Other federal operations — 11 cents (same).

Interest on the national debt — 8 cents (up 1 cent).

Exon To Seek Personnel System Funds

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon's recommended state budget for fiscal 1976-77 will include nearly $800,000 to complete development of a payroll and personnel information system for state government.

Development of the proposed Nebraska Employee Information System (NEIS) was frozen in September when it appeared that costs would force the accounting division of the Department of Administrative Services (DAS) into a budget deficit for the fiscal year.

But DAS Director Stan Matzke Jr. Wednesday asked the Legislature's Appropriations Committee for at least "a tentative go ahead" to resume development of the system so it can be completed by next January.

The governor's budget will ask for $764,900 in new funding, beginning next July, to add to $180,000 now on hand, to complete the system within a year.

The $180,000 could be used for NEIS development in the current fiscal year, but $30,000 to $40,000 is needed immediately to keep the project in its set time frame, Matzke said.

If the committee would approve spending that portion of available funding now, Matzke said, it could delay its final decision on full funding until

on Pages 18, 19

later and still keep the project on schedule in case it decides to go ahead with full development.

Some $454,000 has already been spent on the project.

Full development costs would total $1.4 million.

Without such a system, Matzke warned, the outdated payroll processing system is in danger of breaking down.

Exon's recommendation for funding to complete the system is contained in what will be a $3.9 million general fund budget proposal for current DAS operations.

That figure compares with $2.4 million contained in the tentative budget bill agreed to by the committee.

Exon will propose that two programs, including the state office of planning and programming, be transferred from DAS, dropping his actual DAS budget recommendation to about $3.5 million.

The governor will unveil his state budget recommendations to the Legislature Tuesday.

Pending further discussion, the committee, in effect, has withheld 1976-77 funding from the office of planning and programming.

Its other major reductions in DAS requests were directed at programs in fiscal administration. Matzke said Exon believes it is "only fiscally responsible" to adequately fund DAS, the basic administrative unit of state government.

It is the department which holds state agencies accountable for their expenditures, he noted.

NEIS, Matzke said, would give senators the answers they have been seeking on state employee data.

It can also meet the "serious problems with our current payroll processing system," Matzke said in a written statement earlier mailed to Appropriations Chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings.

"As a result of changes in computer system technology, changes in employee benefit programs and in various federal and state reporting requirements, the payroll system is obsolete."

Without modernization, he said, the day could come when "we may miss a payroll."

Sen. Douglas Bereuter of Uteka questioned whether the new information which could be generated by NEIS is "worth the costs."

MRS. HICKS PAID UP . . . after being arrested for unpaid ticket.

They Really Will Arrest You For Unpaid Tickets

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

The police really will arrest you for one unpaid parking ticket.

Ask Mrs. Patricia Hicks, 42, of 2019 S.W. 9th. Last Friday night she heard the steel door of the City Jail clang shut behind her for that reason.

Mrs. Hicks will also tell you that the police might try to arrest you twice for the same ticket — even if you've already paid the fine.

It was about 8:15 p.m. Friday when a young officer came to the Hicks home and informed her and her husband he was there to make an arrest for an unpaid parking ticket. He told them, "I had eight people on my list. You're the only ones that were home. I hit the jackpot."

Mr. Hicks could have gone to jail. But Mrs. Hicks said, "I got the ticket. I was the logical one to go."

"I thought it was funny. It ceased to think it was funny when they were going to keep me all night," she said.

She called her attorney and was back home by 11 p.m., after a wait in the jail's visiting booth.

The police say that Mrs. Hicks, like everyone else who is arrested for a parking ticket, received at least three letters reminding her that she could be arrested if she failed to pay the fine.

Police also say that phone contact was made at the Hicks home to remind them the ticket must be paid.

Mrs. Hicks said she received only the first letter, which told her the fine was increasing from $1 to $2. After her arrest, she learned that her 10-year-old son had taken a call from the police on the ticket, but had failed to tell her about it.

She maintains the other two letters never arrived at the Hicks home. Although the Municipal Court Clerk Ken Wade says a second letter was sent and police say a third was sent, Mrs. Hicks responds this way:

"I know they make mistakes and I know they make errors," she said, recounting how Monday evening, after she paid the fine, two officers showed up at her home again to arrest her for the ticket.

After a telephone call to the police station, the officers admitted the error and left.

Police Chief George Hansen, noting the reminders a citizen is given to pay his parking ticket, said of the procedure, "I don't know what else you can do to avoid arresting someone."

Velvet Glove Off Fist Of The Law

The velvet glove is off the fist of the law.

Starting Monday police deployed a special detail of seven officers to sweep through the city, arresting people for whom warrants are on file.

The bulk of the warrants have been issued because people have not paid parking tickets, according to Inspector Dean Letner.

The number of warrants has risen to 2,500, Letner said, and the seven specially assigned officers will stay at the task until the number is reduced.

In addition to warrants issued for failure to pay parking tickets, warrants are on file for people who did not show up in court on the date named in traffic and misdemeanor citations and for people who have not adhered to payment schedules they agreed to in court, Letner said.

Letner said citizens are given adequate warning that warrants have been issued for their arrest. Before a person is arrested for a parking ticket, he said, three letters have been sent reminding a person that the fine is unpaid. In addition, he said, the individual usually will be telephoned by police.

Letner said he "cannot understand the callous disregard" of citizens who will ignore repeated warnings.

"If I was notified that a warrant was out for my arrest,

"This kind of arrest causes more bad public relations than any other arrest we make," Hansen said. "But I don't know what we can do other than obey the order of the court (in serving the arrest warrant issued by the court)."

Hansen said that precautions have since been implemented to make sure repeat attempts are not made to arrest people on the same warrant for the same offense.

A curious thing about the episode is that Mrs. Hicks could have disposed of the ticket earlier without spending a dime.

An unpublicized policy of the Municipal Court violations bureau is that Lancaster County citizens who live outside city limits may have two parking tickets per year dismissed without charge.

Mrs. Hicks said she lives a block outside the city and had a ticket dismissed earlier in 1975.

"I'd sure like to beat that policeman to the courtroom," he said.

And on another front in the parking ticket war:

A city ordinance has been drafted which would allow Lincoln police to use rhino boots — steel devices that immobilize vehicles — to force offenders to pay parking tickets.

The boots have been used by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln campus police since November. Chief Gale Gade said the boots, which have replaced towing, have resulted in quicker payments.

City Atty. Charles Humble said the ordinance should be presented to the City Council within two weeks.

According to police, the boots will not damage tires unless owners try to drive their vehicles. A warning will be left on all cars when they are booted.

Lincoln police legal adviser Gerald Fisher said people who pay promptly for tickets will not be booted. The police hopes to find people who have numerous unpaid parking violations.

Muskie Blasts Ford Economics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, speaking for the Democratic party Wednesday night, said President Ford's plans for the economy would mean fewer jobs, higher prices and ever-rising budget deficits.

Avoiding any direct reference to political considerations in the election-year budget process, the Maine Democrat blasted what he said was the "inept, often patently mismanagement" of the economy by Ford and former President Richard Nixon.

"The President's budget is designed to keep unemployment over 7 per cent and more for another year and to keep seven million Americans unemployed at this time a year from now," Muskie said.

He said Ford's budget offers no new jobs and proposes cutbacks in the limited emergency jobs program Congress has enacted.

Muskie included no specific detailed proposals in his speech, nor did he give dollar figures to show how much his general proposals would cost.

His response to President Ford's Monday night State of the Union address was televised by all three networks.

Muskie said, "We can again have confidence that government can restore economic health to our nation, put people back to work — get our factories open again — and stop the inflation that robs our elderly and poor and deprives every one of us of our hard earned dollars."

In his prepared text, he said most economists believe that if Ford's policies are followed, unemployment "will not fall below 7 per cent in this decade."

He said the key to prosperity is to put people back to work and said Ford intends to veto a jobs program pending in Congress which is designed to provide short-term public works and financial assistance to communities with high unemployment rates.

Muskie said that plan, supported by many Democrats, would create 300,000 jobs this year alone. Those should be in addition to jobs Congress could create in private industry "by additional tax cuts without increasing present spending levels," he said.

Muskie said Congress could "avoid discouraging private sector employment by rejecting the President's proposals to increase payroll taxes."

Muskie also defended disclosures of U.S. intelligence operations, and said, "the world is watching with amazement" as Congress examines in public the nation's intelligence secrets.

He said such disclosure, frequently criticized by President Ford, is necessary even though there always is a need for secrecy in foreign policy within limits.

A nation, said Muskie, "gets only weakness and disappointment from secrecy and surprise."

Exon To Seek Personnel System Funds

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Gov. J. James Exon's recommended state budget for fiscal 1976-77 will include nearly $800,000 to complete development of a payroll and personnel information system for state government.

Development of the proposed Nebraska Employee Information System (NEIS) was frozen in September when it appeared that costs would force the accounting division of the Department of Administrative Services (DAS) into a budget deficit for the fiscal year.

Muskie said that plan, supported by many Democrats, would create 300,000 jobs this year alone. Those should be in addition to jobs Congress could create in private industry "by additional tax cuts without increasing present spending levels," he said.

Muskie said Congress could "avoid discouraging private sector employment by rejecting the President's proposals to increase payroll taxes."

Muskie also defended disclosures of U.S. intelligence operations, and said, "the world is watching with amazement" as Congress examines in public the nation's intelligence secrets.

He said such disclosure, frequently criticized by President Ford, is necessary even though there always is a need for secrecy in foreign policy within limits.

A nation, said Muskie, "gets only weakness and disappointment from secrecy and surprise."

MRS. HICKS PAID UP . . . after being arrested for unpaid ticket.

They Really Will Arrest You For Unpaid Tickets

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

The police really will arrest you for one unpaid parking ticket.

Ask Mrs. Patricia Hicks, 42, of 2019 S.W. 9th. Last Friday night she heard the steel door of the City Jail clang shut behind her for that reason.

Mrs. Hicks will also tell you that the police might try to arrest you twice for the same ticket — even if you've already paid the fine.

It was about 8:15 p.m. Friday when a young officer came to the Hicks home and informed her and her husband he was there to make an arrest for an unpaid parking ticket. He told them, "I had eight people on my list. You're the only ones that were home. I hit the jackpot."

Mr. Hicks could have gone to jail. But Mrs. Hicks said, "I got the ticket. I was the logical one to go."

"I thought it was funny. It ceased to think it was funny when they were going to keep me all night," she said.

She called her attorney and was back home by 11 p.m., after a wait in the jail's visiting booth.

The police say that Mrs. Hicks, like everyone else who is arrested for a parking ticket, received at least three letters reminding her that she could be arrested if she failed to pay the fine.

Police also say that phone contact was made at the Hicks home to remind them the ticket must be paid.

Mrs. Hicks said she received only the first letter, which told her the fine was increasing from $1 to $2. After her arrest, she learned that her 10-year-old son had taken a call from the police on the ticket, but had failed to tell her about it.

She maintains the other two letters never arrived at the Hicks home. Although the Municipal Court Clerk Ken Wade says a second letter was sent and police say a third was sent, Mrs. Hicks responds this way:

"I know they make mistakes and I know they make errors," she said, recounting how Monday evening, after she paid the fine, two officers showed up at her home again to arrest her for the ticket.

After a telephone call to the police station, the officers admitted the error and left.

Police Chief George Hansen, noting the reminders a citizen is given to pay his parking ticket, said of the procedure, "I don't know what else you can do to avoid arresting someone."

The velvet glove is off the fist of the law.

Starting Monday police deployed a special detail of seven officers to sweep through the city, arresting people for whom warrants are on file.

The bulk of the warrants have been issued because people have not paid parking tickets, according to Inspector Dean Leitner.

The number of warrants has risen to 2,500, Leitner said, and the seven specially assigned officers will stay at the task until the number is reduced.

In addition to warrants issued for failure to pay parking tickets, warrants are on file for people who did not show up in court on the date named in traffic and misdemeanor citations and for people who have not adhered to payment schedules they agreed to in court, Leitner said.

Leitner said citizens are given adequate warning that warrants have been issued for their arrest. Before a person is arrested for a parking ticket, he said, three letters have been sent reminding a person that the fine is unpaid. In addition, he said, the individual usually will be telephoned by police.

Leitner said he "cannot understand the callous disregard" of citizens who will ignore repeated warnings.

"If I was notified that a warrant was out for my arrest,

"This kind of arrest causes more bad public relations than any other arrest we make," Hansen said. "But I don't know what we can do other than obey the order of the court (in serving the arrest warrant issued by the court)."

Hansen said that precautions have since been implemented to make sure repeat attempts are not made to arrest people on the same warrant for the same offense.

A curious thing about the episode is that Mrs. Hicks could have disposed of the ticket earlier without spending a dime.

An unpublished policy of the Municipal Court violations bureau is that Lancaster County citizens who live outside city limits may have two parking tickets per year dismissed without charge.

Mrs. Hicks said she lives a block outside the city and had a ticket dismissed earlier in 1975.

Velvet Glove Off Fist Of The Law

I'd sure like to beat that policeman to the courtroom," he said.

And on another front in the parking ticket war:

A city ordinance has been drafted which would allow Lincoln police to use rhino boots — steel devices that immobilize vehicles — to force offenders to pay parking tickets.

The boots have been used by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln campus police since November. Chief Gale Gade said the boots, which have replaced towing, have resulted in quicker payments.

City Atty. Charles Humble said the ordinance should be presented to the City Council within two weeks.

According to police, the boots will not damage tires unless owners try to drive their vehicles. A warning will be left on all cars when they are booted.

Lincoln police legal adviser Gerald Fisher said people who pay promptly for tickets will not be booted. The police hopes to find people who have numerous unpaid parking violations.

Lebanon Christians OK Syrian Truce Proposal

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Palestinian guerrillas and Moslem private armies took over most of Lebanon on Wednesday and Egypt's official Middle East News Agency said Lebanese Christian leaders accepted a Syrian proposal for a cease-fire.

A spokesman for the right-wing Christian Phalange militia denied that his side had accepted the Syrian peace plan.

The news agency reported Moslem and Christian combatants were expected to sign the cease-fire agreement Thursday, with the terms calling for an equal share in Lebanon's government for the Moslems.

The Phalange spokesman said the Christians and Syrian mediators would meet Thursday morning but any predictions about acceptance or rejection of the terms were premature.

There was no confirmation of the cease-fire from Damascus.

The Egyptian agency said Lebanon's Christian president, Suleiman Franjeh, accepted the Syrian cease-fire proposals after he was given authority by other Christian parties to talk with Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul Halim Khaddam.

The agency said Interior Minister Camille Chamoun, a powerful leader of one of the Christian factions, was against the agreement. Earlier in the week, Chamoun accused Syria of sending its own troops into Lebanon.

In Damascus, informed sources said the Palestinian in-cursion into Lebanon was intended to back Moslem demands for an equal share of political power and for economic development in poor Moslem areas.

The No. 2 man in the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, Abu Leila, told Associated Press reporter Edward Cody in the Syrian capital that Lebanese Moslems would accept no cease-fire without first obtaining their political goals.

Lebanese Christians now have the edge in political power and control most of the economic wealth.

King Hussein of Jordan met in Damascus with Syrian President Hafez Assad, apparently in support of the Syrian mediation.

Court Powers Over Citizens' Complaints Cut

Washington (UPI) — The Supreme Court, in a 5-3 decision Wednesday, sharply limited the power of federal courts to remedy citizen complaints about police brutality.

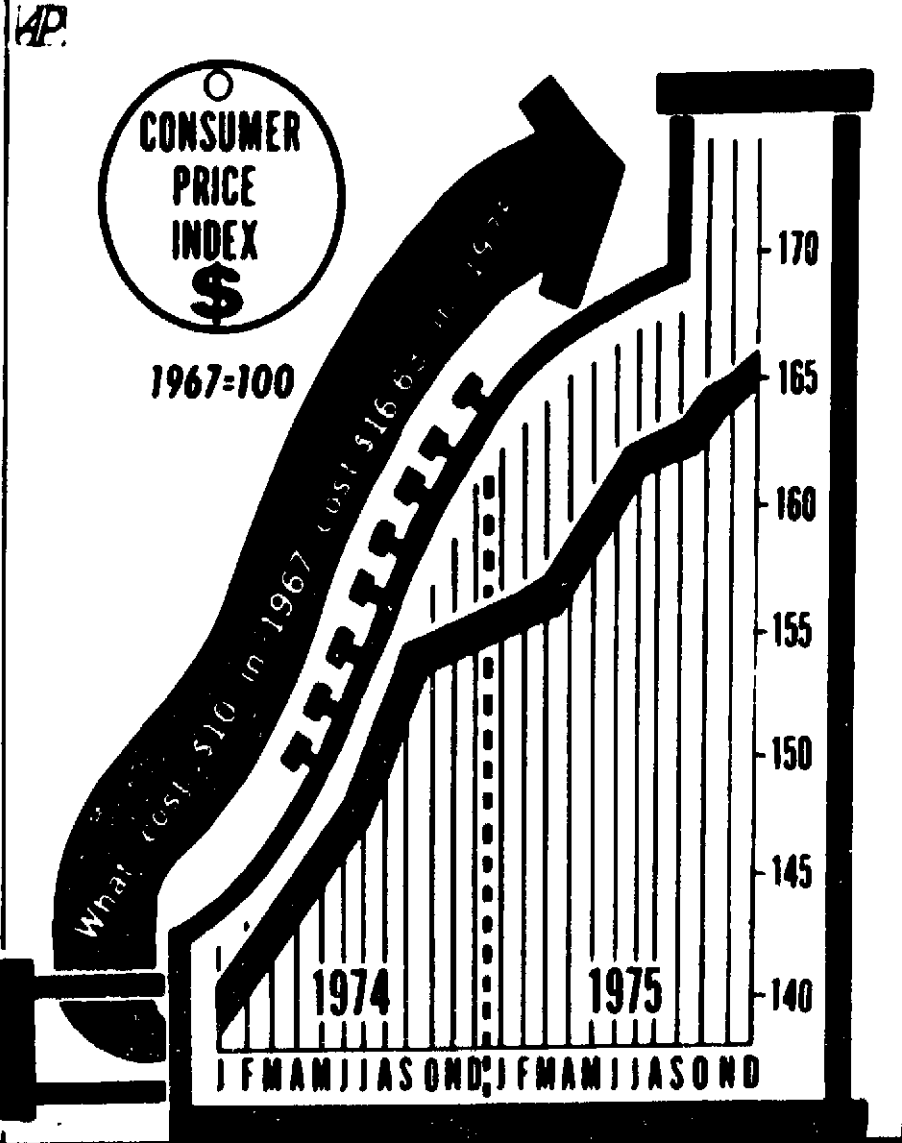

Justice William H. Rehnquist said for the majority that courts erred in imposing detailed standards on the Philadelphia Police Department for dealing with citizen complaints, since there was no proof of a conspiracy among top officials to violate constitutional rights.

Isolated instances of intentional brutality by patrolmen are not sufficient cause for sweeping intervention by federal courts into the affairs of local police departments, Rehnquist said.

In dissent, Justice Harry A. Blackmun said the majority rejected traditional concepts that supervisors can be held liable for the misconduct of their subordinates.

"There must be federal relief available against persistent deprival of federal constitutional rights even by (or perhaps I should say particularly by) constituted authority on the state side," Blackmun said.

He was joined in dissent by William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall.

1975 Inflation Is 7%

Washington (UPI) — Consumer price figures released Wednesday showed inflation hit 7% during 1975 — the lowest rate in three years, but still historically high. Government experts predicted it would be 6% this year.

High prices for public transportation, autos, medical services and some foods drove the cost of living up 0.5% in December, the Labor Department announced.

The average worker's earnings rose only 0.2% faster than the cost of living in 1975. But a federal tax cut gave him an overall 3.8% increase in real spendable earnings.

The consumer price index — the commonly accepted measure of annual inflation — rose 8.8% in 1973 and then jumped 12.2% in 1974, the biggest one-year leap since the end of World War II. The 1975 figure was lower, but still above the pace set prior to the latest inflationary surge.

Assistant Commerce Secretary James Pate said the improvement in inflation during 1975 was "a little bit greater than what the administration anticipated." But he cautioned progress will be more gradual in 1976, when inflation will cool to about 6%.

Service prices — particularly transportation and medical costs — were a major factor behind inflation in December and during the year. Services rose 0.6% in December and 8.1% in 1975.

Food prices climbed 0.3% in December and 6.5% in 1975, led by a 15.8% annual rise in meat, poultry and fish. Other commodities recorded a one-month 0.3% increase and a 6.2% annual hike.

Gasoline and motor oil rose 10.5% in 1975, more than any other nonfood commodity.

The consumer price index stood at 166.3 in December, meaning that items costing $100 in 1967, now cost $166.30. December's increase followed 0.7% hikes in the two previous months.

Throughout 1975, transportation services soared 11.8% and medical care services 10.3%. In December, there were increases between 1% and more than 4% in auto insurance, taxi, railroad and airline fares, and physicians' fees.

Prices for fuel oil, tobacco products, newspapers and magazines also rose in December. A 2.1% jump in new car prices reflected the continued introduction of new 1976 domestic models, the first purchases of 1976 imports and the end of one automaker's consumer rebates on 1975 models.

The Labor Department's December figures were adjusted for seasonal factors, but the full-year figures require no adjustment.

Soviets Make Concessions

Moscow — The Soviet Union was reported Wednesday night to have made some concessions toward resolving the deadlock over a strategic arms agreement with the United States but was said to be holding firm on other key points. According to an American official participating in talks that opened here Wednesday, the United States also offered some modifications in its position and these were expected to be studied by the Kremlin leadership before the negotiations resumed Thursday morning.

Banking Firms On Problem List

New York — Twelve of the country's 50 largest commercial banking companies were placed on a confidential "problem" list by the Federal Reserve Board staff a year ago. The largest bank holding companies in North Carolina and Wisconsin, major bank holding companies in upstate New York, California and Pennsylvania, and smaller companies elsewhere were singled out as having "more serious problems" than others on the list.

CBS Staffer FBI Informant

Washington — A CBS staff newsmen who covered the United Nations in the 1950's and 1960's was, without the knowledge of superiors, an informant for the Federal Bureau of Investigation, according to information developed by the Senate Intelligence Committee. The sources say Sam A. Jaffe was recruited in the early 1950's to keep watch on the U.N. Soviet delegation, a function he performed until 1961, when he joined ABC News and took an assignment in Moscow. His FBI relationship continued even after that, Jaffe confirmed in a telephone interview.

Quebec Settlements Won't Help Midwestern Papers

NEW YORK (AP) — The fact that workers at four Quebec pulp and paper mills have voted to end their four-month strike probably won't help the U.S. newspapers hurt most by the Canadian newspaper workers' strikes—those in the Midwest.

"We helped a central plant in Wisconsin that was down to four rolls of newsprint," said Sharon Mikutowicz, spokeswoman for the National Newspaper Association. "That plant supplies six or seven weekly papers. We got some paper out of Illinois. We've had a couple of other calls."

Most of the production from the four Quebec mills goes to the northeastern United States and eastern ports such as Miami.

December figures were not yet tallied, but at the end of November newspapers averaged enough paper on hand for 38 days of publishing, with five days' newsprint in transit.

Joe Prendergast of the American Newspaper Publishers Association called January a "critical month," because December papers traditionally use more newsprint for Christmas advertising.

The price of newsprint remains about the same as a month ago, an average of $260 a ton east of the Rockies and $280 a ton in the West, he said.

Several industry spokesmen expressed confidence that the Canadian government's Anti-Inflation Review Board would approve the contract accepted Tuesday by employees at Domtar Newsprint Ltd. at Dolbeau, Quebec; North Shore Paper Co. Ltd. at Baie Comeau, Quebec; and James MacLaren Co. Ltd. at Buckingham, Quebec, and on Monday by Reed Paper Ltd. at Quebec City.

The review board had said that it wouldn't accept any more than a 14 per cent wage increase in the first year of a contract, the increase agreed to at the four Quebec mills.

However, industry observers don't expect quick settlements to follow by the rest of the 25, 000 paperworkers in eastern Canada.

Miss Mikutowicz said, "I don't think the end of the strikes will come as smoothly as we would like to see it come."

Ontario mills, which struck first in general supply the Midwestern and Mississippi basin newspapers. Newsprint deliveries are near normal in the West, since settlement of strikes at mills in British Columbia.

U.S. publishers traditionally reply on Canada for 65 per cent of their newsprint needs.

Small Shopping Center Sought At 27th, Cheney

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

A developer told local planners Wednesday a neighborhood shopping center is needed at 27th and Old Cheney Rd. to serve the expanding number of residential homes in south Lincoln.

Chauncey Barney, attorney for developer John Hoppe, urged the City-County Planning Commission to rezone a five-acre tract from A-1 Single Family to G-1 Planned Commercial. The land is located on the northwest corner of the intersection and was the site of a proposed regional shopping center last year.

Barney noted that the regional center would have been 100 acres. Hoppe's proposal is for only five acres and would serve not only the Southwest area but the homes being built by Hoppe to the east along Old Cheney Rd.

"This is rather a small request for a small, convenient type center," Barney said.

Barney said Hoppe bought about 80 acres of land in the area which would have been used for the regional shopping center. The plans on Briarhurst West 3rd Addition will be presented to the commission next week, Barney said.

The application ran into opposition from some residents of the area who questioned the need for the center.

Richard Hoffman listed a number of shopping areas within two miles of 27th and Old Cheney Rd. and said homeowners would rather drive to other locations than have a shopping center in their midst. He claimed that without sidewalks, nobody would walk to the shopping area anyway.

Steve Kuhlman presented a petition signed by 150 people objecting to the zoning change.

Pace Woods, Jr., a realtor and developer himself, didn't exactly object to the application, but voiced concern that a small shopping center could lead to the eventual construction of a regional shopping center at 27th St. The City Council turned down such an application in late 1974.

Barney testified that Hoppe is willing to restrict the use of the remaining land to residential use and tried to convince the planners that only a five-acre center would be built.

However, several planning commissioners questioned the need for the zoning, noting that a shopping area at 27th and Hwy. 2 could serve the residents.

Additionally, the planners pointed out that Hoppe already has business zoning on about seven acres of land at 40th and Old Cheney Rd. The commissioners argued that one such neighborhood center would be sufficient in the area.

Barney strongly disagreed, contending that neighborhood centers need to be located every mile to serve people and to conserve energy. He said the 27th St. location is considered to be ideal because the center would be located on two arterial streets and would not be incompatible with other buildings on that corner.

Across the street on the northwest corner is a home office insurance building, while on the southwest corner is a telephone repeater station.

Planning Director Doug Brogden is recommending deferral of the application because the preliminary use plan calls for construction of a somewhat larger shopping center on the southeast corner of the intersection.

Brogden contends that an "undesirable land use situation would result" should Hoppe's five acres be rezoned for commercial use.

Barney told the planners he would prefer a recommendation of approval or denial rather than having his application be delayed. That way, he said, he can take his case on to the City Council for action.

The commission is scheduled to decide the question next week.

A. Liberator Runs Again

Americus Liberator is running for president again.

Liberator is a jack-of-all-trades who has been a candidate for the presidency of the United States in each election since 1968.

A letter on file with the secretary of state's office Wednesday said Liberator would make another run at the nation's highest office.

In the letter, Liberator said he would seek write-in status in every state where write-ins are allowed.

Liberator, 65, lives in Valentine. He won nationwide attention in 1968 when he was listed on the Nebraska all-star presidential primary ballot as a Republican candidate for president.

The commission is scheduled to decide the question next week.

Charter Panel Wants No Hidden Tax

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

The Charter Revision Committee said Wednesday night that the in-lieu-of-tax payments made by the Lincoln Electric System are really a "hidden tax" on ratepayers.

As a result, the committee is recommending that the tax be eliminated. That recommendation will be forwarded to the City Council which will decide whether to place the measure on the ballot for voter approval.

About $1 million was paid by LES last year. The money was divided between the city, school district, county and several small towns which receive electricity from LES. The payments amount to 5% of LES gross revenues.

The city administration had proposed the charter be changed so that the entire million dollars could be channeled into city coffers.

That proposal backfired when the Charter Revision Committee decided that nobody should get the money.

Last year City Finance Director Jim Mallon said Lincoln received $279,914.

The School District received $64,589, while Lancaster County received $129,000.

Representatives of both the school district and county strongly objected to the proposed elimination of those in-lieu-of-tax payments.

Committee members said they would rather eliminate the payments with the hopes that the extra money would enable LES to keep the electric rates from rising as fast as they have in the past year.

Testifying at the public hearing was School Supt. John Prash who said the loss of a half million dollars a year would result in a property tax increase.

Prash said any such cut in the payments might jeopardize continued city-school district cooperation.

School Board attorney Ed Perry argued that elimination of the tax or the redistribution of the tax to the city would go against tradition. He noted that the Nebraska Public Power District and the Omaha Public Power District pay in-lieu-of-tax payments and argued that LES shouldn't be treated any differently.

While school officials warned that it would be an unpopular move to eliminate the payments since the school district tax bill would increase by 1.1 mills, Mallon noted that the city's tax bill would go down should all the money be given to the city.

Mallon said the total tax bill actually would be about the same regardless of which governmental subdivision got the money.

County Commissioner Jan Gauger also testified against the elimination of those LES payments.

Because the county is reaching the ceiling on how much tax it can levy, Mrs. Gauger said, "We are facing an uncertain future."

The only way the county could recover the lost $129,000 would be by either reducing the budget or increasing property taxes, she said.

Committee members said they didn't think it was right that LES, a city-owned utility, had to pay almost a million dollars a year to other political subdivisions. In the end, it's still the taxpayer who has to foot the bill, the committee said.

The vote to recommend the measure be placed on the ballot was 10 to 3.

Road Plan Policies Okayed Over Engineer's Objections

The City-County Planning Commission adopted policies governing county road planning despite County Engineer Marv Nuernberger's criticism of some of those policies Wednesday.

The document, drafted by Planning Director Doug Brogden, is aimed at making county road planning conform to some written criteria.

Road planning should conform to such things as the Goals and Policies report, the Comprehensive Plan and deal with road right-of-way widths.

Six-Year Maximum

While he doesn't object to long-range planning, Nuernberger believes that actual road planning can't be done beyond about a six-year period.

And the problem with Brogden's road plan, he said, is that it tries to plan for 25 years.

Nuernberger indicated one proposal in the plan calling for a 25-year planning period would be in conflict with state law which sets down one- and five-year county road planning. The county engineer, an elected official, hinted that the planners' proposal just might impede his planning process and jeopardize federal funds for roads.

"I don't particularly object to the criteria in here," Nuernberger stated, "but I'm already generally following much of this."

Commissioner Lou Shackelford said the commission wasn't trying to interfere with the implementation of the county's secondary road system.

Nuernberger argued that the plan could pose a problem because federal and state laws on road building change periodically.

When commissioners finally threw up their hands in a collective disgust, only one commissioner sided with Nuernberger. That was Jerome Warner, who is also a state senator and has dealt with county road problems in the Legislature.

"There are some things in here that concern me," Warner said. "Anything in here which becomes an additional barrier and creates more red tape so he can't get federal funds would be a problem."

Comprehensive Plan

When several commissioners asked if they should delay action on the proposal, Brogden pointed out that the criteria is supposed to be fit into the Comprehensive Plan.

Brogden noted that the County Board asked the commission about six months ago to get Brogden and Nuernberger to agree to a county right-of-way plan. When that didn't work, Brogden said he came up with the criteria. The plan is not specific on right-of-way widths.

The commission approved the Brogden's plan on a 6 to 1 vote. Warner voted against the proposal, promising to submit some amendments to the plan which might meet Nuernberger's objections.

In other business the commission held a hearing on the Kramer Farmers Union Co-op proposal to change the zoning on land in Kramer. A number of people favored the change of zone from A Residential to I Industrial. The commission will vote on the request next week.

Other hearings or action was taken on:

- Changes of Zone
  - Deferred action on John Baker's application from A-2 Single Family to F Restricted Commercial at 48th and South.
  - Application of Herbert Brothers from AA Rural to A-1 Single Family at 84th and A.

Federal Fund Use Is Topic Of Hearing

If Lincolmites want to tell the city how to spend $1.1 million in community development money, they'll get a chance Thursday night.

The Urban Development Department will have a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council chambers on the community development program.

A task force created to study the matter is recommending that most of the money be used for housing rehabilitation and neighborhood redevelopment projects.

The committee also is recommending that federal dollars be used to preserve historic buildings, remove abandoned buildings, start a loan program for home repairs and begin an interest subsidy program for small businesses.

Last year the city began redevelopment projects in the Clinton neighborhood. Other neighborhoods receiving money were West Lincoln, Havelock, Malone and the Near-South area.

Crime Board Elects Three New Members

The Region II Crime Commission Wednesday elected three new members.

They are Harold Nansel, Waverly Councilman; Municipal Judge Donald Grant; and Marie Arnot, a member of the Lower Platte South Natural Resource District.

They replace former Hickman Mayor Dick Eisenhauer; Municipal Judge Neal Dusenberry and Waverly Mayor Wayne Marolf.

In other action the commission decided to meet at night on May 12 to see if more citizens will attend its monthly meetings at that hour.

Commissioner Chairman Ray Gottner said the suggestion had been made by someone in the press. He did not name the person.

Small Shopping Center Sought At 27th, Cheney

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

A developer told local planners Wednesday a neighborhood shopping center is needed at 27th and Old Cheney Rd. to serve the expanding number of residential homes in south Lincoln.

Chauncey Barney, attorney for developer John Hoppe, urged the City-County Planning Commission to rezone a five-acre tract from A-1 Single Family to G-1 Planned Commercial. The land is located on the northwest corner of the intersection and was the site of a proposed regional shopping center last year.

Barney noted that the regional center would have been 100 acres. Hoppe's proposal is for only five acres and would serve not only the Southwest area but the homes being built by Hoppe to the east along Old Cheney Rd.

"This is rather a small request for a small, convenient type center," Barney said.

Barney said Hoppe bought about 80 acres of land in the area which would have been used for the regional shopping center. The plans on Briarhurst West 3rd Addition will be presented to the commission next week, Barney said.

The application ran into opposition from some residents of the area who questioned the need for the center.

Richard Hoffman listed a number of shopping areas within two miles of 27th and Old Cheney Rd. and said homeowners would rather drive to other locations than have a shopping center in their midst. He claimed that without sidewalks, nobody would walk to the shopping area anyway.

Steve Kuhlman presented a petition signed by 150 people objecting to the zoning change.

Pace Woods, Jr., a realtor and developer himself, didn't exactly object to the application, but voiced concern that a small shopping center could lead to the eventual construction of a regional shopping center at 27th St. The City Council turned down such an application in late 1974.

Barney testified that Hoppe is willing to restrict the use of the remaining land to residential use and tried to convince the planners that only a five-acre center would be built.

However, several planning commissioners questioned the need for the zoning, noting that a shopping area at 27th and Hwy. 2 could serve the residents.

Additionally, the planners pointed out that Hoppe already has business zoning on about seven acres of land at 40th and Old Cheney Rd. The commissioners argued that one such neighborhood center would be sufficient in the area.

Barney strongly disagreed, contending that neighborhood centers need to be located every mile to serve people and to conserve energy. He said the 27th St. location is considered to be ideal because the center would be located on two arterial streets and would not be incompatible with other buildings on that corner.

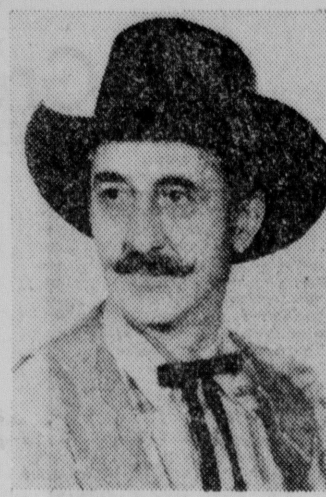

Across the street on the northwest corner is a home office insurance building, while on the southwest corner is a telephone repeater station.

Planning Director Doug Brogden is recommending deferral of the application because the preliminary use plan calls for construction of a somewhat larger shopping center on the southeast corner of the intersection.

Brogden contends that an "undesirable land use situation would result" should Hoppe's five acres be rezoned for commercial use.

Barney told the planners he would prefer a recommendation of approval or denial rather than having his application be delayed. That way, he said, he can take his case on to the City Council for action.

The commission is scheduled to decide the question next week.

Term Limits Rejected

The Lincoln City Charter Revision Committee struck a blow for democracy Tuesday night.

The advisory group voted 8-3 not to recommend a charter change limiting Lincoln mayors and City Council members to two consecutive terms of office. That proposal has the backing of such Lincoln leaders as Council President Max Denney and Mayor Helen Boosalis.

The reasoning of the revision committee apparently paralleled that of Council member Sue Bailey, however. Mrs. Bailey told the committee Tuesday night that term limits place undue restraints on the voters. It is the people's responsibility to determine whether a mayor or council member should be retained or kicked out of office, she said.

The council can overlook the committee's rejection of the proposal and place the issue of term limits on a city election ballot for voter consideration. But the committee's vote can be seen in advance as reflective of a skeptical public attitude toward curtailing the voter's prerogatives.

Man tends to dilute or bastardize perfectly good and workable concepts by a gradual process to accommodate narrow interests and isolated problems.

Riddling a tax base — income, property or sales — with exemptions is one example.

The same is done with democracy. Lip service is paid to the concept of the people's right to choose but there are always proposals offered to restrict that right.

We're not talking about retaining pure democracy in the sense of all the people voting on each issue, but about keeping representative democracy as pure as possible.

It all boils down to faith in the ability of the people to decide for themselves who should represent them. If they are not watchful enough, or are not smart enough, are gullible or apathetic, the system can be abused by politicians with little talent and character other than ambition. That happens all too often. But not enough to change the system.

We believe, as does Mrs. Bailey, that the constitutional amendment limiting presidential terms is "a dumb amendment," likewise state and local limitations on terms of officeholders wherever those limits exist.

There are responsibilities and challenges within a system under which people are theoretically supposed to govern themselves. People should not agree to unshoulder that responsibility by bits and pieces. When a little bit of responsibility (such as taking the time to determine an officeholder's fitness to serve at the end of each term) is given away, a little bit of freedom is given away.

The Same Old Stuff

One thoughtful criticism of the media's reporting of political campaigns that has been circulating lately has related to the tendency of reporters to write about what the candidates say and how they are perceived to be doing, but not about what the people want.

That is a legitimate criticism, perhaps. The focus is on the candidate as he flits around the nation, uttering generalities and smiling, and on what the experts think of his chances. The emphasis has not been on what is bothering the people of Iowa or New Hampshire, for example, and what they expect from leadership. Getting out among the people is one goal that hopefully those who report the political scene will strive for.

The media may learn, for one thing, if the people are listening to the candidates and reading the newspapers and distinguishing among remarks the politicians make. It will be interesting to find out whether the voters are still buying the same old stuff.

What same old stuff? For example, this week Gov. Wallace of Alabama was talking about President Ford's proposal to hike the payroll deduction for Social Security. Wallace said he was in favor of Social Security (thus pleasing people collecting or about to collect; those who are old and have little or no other means of support to see them through retirement to the grave) but he doesn't think young people should have to be taxed for it. We imagine the governor was talking about an extra, unfair, burdensome tax, but true to form, Wallace, who pleases the rednecks in Alabama by regarding even the barest decency in prison housing as "coddling" criminals, is trying to please everybody by seeming to advocate a Social Security free lunch.

The Social Security system is in big trouble and everybody knows it. Now is the time for those who aspire to national office to be offering tough talk about how to save it from going broke; about reforming or changing the system to provide for the old without bankrupting the wage earner. But simply saying one believes in Social Security but doesn't want to tax enough to support it is simply offering nothing of value to the debate.

Hopefully the people will react against that kind of old-style nonsense, the media will capture their disgust and glib politicians will learn a lesson.

LA VERNA HASSLER

This morning when I arose and blinked to see the time Old Grandfather Clock had been busy keeping through the night, I wasn't certain I wanted to face the day. There are such mornings now and then when I would rather go back to bed. I know almost everyone has such mornings.

Then my eyes fell upon the glass of the door that swings wide when we wind the clock and it changed the mood of the morning before the pendulum could make a full swing.

On the glass were the fingerprints of a little boy whom we had the honor of being baby-sitters for while his parents were gone for the evening. I left them on the glass despite the fact that some may think I am a meticulous housekeeper . . . a week with baby finger-prints on Grandfather Clock — tish, tish!

Today I may whiz them away but I will see the little boy reflected again, no bigger than a minute, touching the clock and laughing as it gonged and vibrated the case. His brown eyes danced as he watched the pendulum swing back and forth and excitement tingled from the tips of his toes to the tiny hands that touched the faithful timekeeper.

consul in Rome, a position he held only until 1928 when he retired from that profession to business and farming. When the O.S.S. was created, Bruce joined, became its European theater director (as a colonel) and thereafter devoted his life to the nation.

He headed the Marshall Plan mission to France, the U.S. mission to the European communities, represented

Washington at Vietnam peace talks, and was also undersecretary of state. But he is best known for his singular ability as an ambassador, having served six presidents as envoy to France, West Germany, Britain, China (head of the "Liaison Mission") and NATO, from which post he now steps down.

Bruce's talents were those of the last 18th Century American gentleman. A tall, handsome, elegant man, erudite and immensely cultivated, he is a sportsman, knowledgeable about wine, furniture, food, fashion, books, philosophy, politics, war, impeccably courteous and infinitely humane.

While he was stationed in Bonn, he used to sit around with Konrad Adenauer sipping Rhine wine and discussing Renaissance painting, on which the old chancellor was expert. Adenauer said to me: "If you Americans can't send Bruce back here again, at least send somebody just like him."

Bruce was an intimate of Churchill, Eden, Macmillan and the leading French statesmen of the Fourth Republic. He had a fine working relationship with Chou En-lai. At NATO he was regarded as a kind of human monument.

His life was by no means staid and conventional. As Paris was being liberated in 1944, he and his friend, Ernest Hemingway, worked their way to the Ritz Hotel bar with a ragtag group of free French and O.S.S. fighters. The manager asked Bruce if he wanted anything to drink. "Yes," he answered, "seventy martinis."

Over the years his observations have stood the test of time. In 1950, against Pentagon opposition, he advocated sharing America's secret weapons with our allies, arguing: "We do not plan any aggressive war, so even if the Russians learn their secrets, it won't matter to us. The Russians will have to learn them some day, anyway."

He urged Churchill to back the European Army Project for rearming Germany. He criticized Admiral Radford for wanting to use nuclear weapons at Dien Bien Phu. He thought Adlai Stevenson would be a bad secretary of state but an extremely good ambassador to U.N. He thought Britain's only future lay in Europe.

China always fascinated him.

When Eisenhower offered him the Indian Embassy he declined, but said if China ever opened up, that's what he wanted. Had the Democrats won the 1956 elections, Bruce (a Democrat although he served presidents from both parties) would have been anxious to go to Peking.

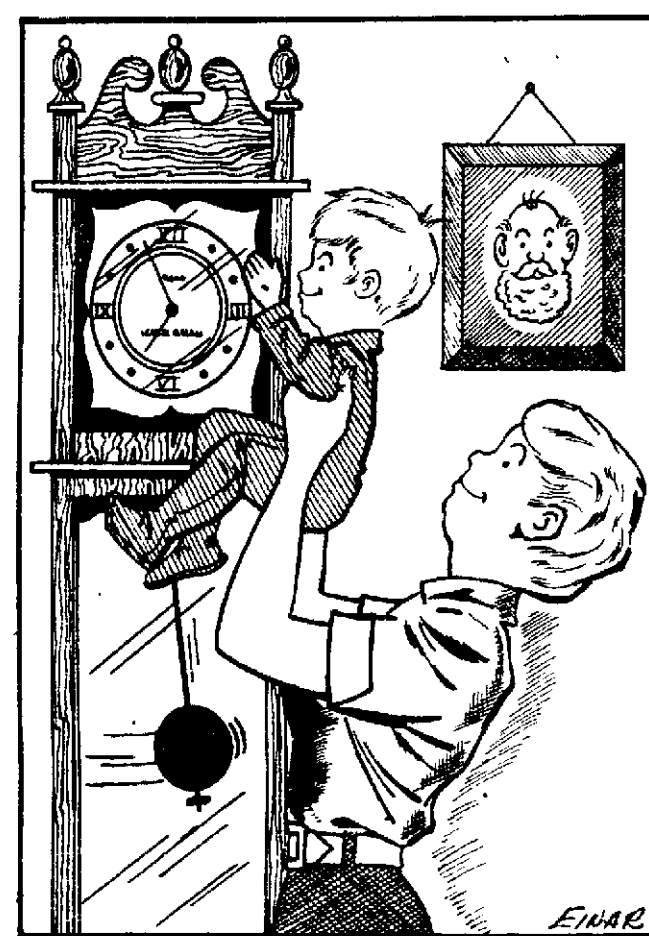

When eventually sent by Nixon, he was fascinated by Mao Tse-tung, Chou (and above all the simplicity of Chou's life — except for a superb cuisine). Bruce used to quip: "China is capturing the Third World at the banquet table."

He wrote one book, a study of the first 16 U.S. presidents called "Revolution to Reconstruction." Of these, he told Eisenhower the most effective were Washington and the two Adams who had sought to represent the electors. Until he entered the White House, Lincoln (Bruce thought) had been a lazy, ambitious trimmer.

It is noteworthy that two of the three best presidents for him were 18th Century figures (our age of quality) and the third belonged largely to that category. So does Bruce.

scurry about their mounds or an inch-worm work his way along a blade of grass without looking to the earth?

So perhaps it was by force of habit that I chanced to see a rare piece of artwork displayed on the patio one recent morning. The errant wind had tossed nine maple leaves in a helter-skelter pattern in a small dip in the cement. They remained in place while the water dripped from the melting snow on the roof and settled over the leaves. The night was very cold and the water froze into zig zags of ice over the leaves. It looked like crackle-glass had been placed over the arrangement of brown and red-brown leaves by some master craftsman. When the sunlight filtered on the patio, it added a rare sheen of sparkling beauty.

I'm not an artist but it looked just right to me . . . eye-catching nine leaves (I counted them) in an informal and attractive grouping, subdued coloration highlighted by a glaze of ice with a crackle pattern for added interest.

Looking down does offer some wonderful surprises. I'm happy I caught sight of the masterpiece before the sun destroyed the delicate arrangement. Droll though it may seem to some people, it made my day.

After I had spoken, I thought of how the old clock would continue to strike as the little boy grows into a man. The cathedral-like chimes will continue to fill the room as time counts the happy days and the solemn hours as it does in the life of every man. But as the truth of life evolves for Gregory, may there always be an aesthetic joy just as there is today when he rests his baby hand on the case of Old Grandfather Clock.

Noise And Noise

I just heard on the radio that in time, man intends to produce trains that make no noise. How foolish, especially in this generation and age. The ones who have lived any length of time can't hear half of what is said, so the noise wouldn't bother them. And the generation growing up play everything so loud that one player would do the whole block.

I was really shocked when I went shopping downtown in Lincoln one day recently. What used to be a nice eating place has been turned into a noisy pool-hall. They have slot machines (I always call them "slop" machines).

If all such racket as this has to go on with the younger generation, why pick on the train that goes through town only a few times daily, not 24 hours around the clock?

Green Wood, Wet Cobs

When we paid our gas bill this month, we thought of the good old cob, wood and coal fires we used to have. We thought the price of coal high, so burned wet and dry cobs to hold the fire a long time, and the heat was good. The same with green wood and dry wood. The kitchen range oven was filled with green wood drying out.

We also had a one-cent pleasure, the best bargain in our history — the one-cent postal card. It brought much joy, happiness and even sadness. It was the top bargain ever.

People were so saving then. We had free "Mr. Whipple" paper catalogues. People rolled string into a ball as they got it. Children used pretty wrapping paper to make chains, with flour paste holding them together. It was a good stormy-day pastime. Old worn wool garments were used for quilt pieces. Calendar sheets were cut into paper for grocery lists. Nothing was wasted.

We paid as we bought things. "Pay As You Go" was the motto.

Capital Punishment

The "innocent by reason of insanity" plea entered by the defense in the Samants case is a real cop-out. If the criminal didn't know what he was doing when the crime was committed, then he wouldn't know what the state was doing when it strapped him into the electric chair.

The sob-sisters and the bleeding-hearts cry that capital punishment is not a deterrent to crime. They have their terms confused. It is not supposed to be deterrence; it is supposed to be punishment.

The American Party of Nebraska believes that the mandatory death sentence for certain crimes must be restored and that more discipline, not less, is needed for criminals.

Discretionary Boards

I would like to award our Minnechadua Cowpie with rabbit clusters to Senator John Cavanaugh for performing the first public disservice of the Bicentennial year.

Senator Cavanaugh has introduced LB 788, which would create still another discretionary board (Nebraska Information Practices) on which to park one's unemployed relatives.

Such a board would further eclipse the freedom of the press as well as menace the legitimate privacy of individuals. What a discretionary board can keep, it can also give away.

Gunnar Myrdal has pointed out again and again that the characteristic method of backward countries is to create discretionary powers instead of laws. A law is a steel rule, not a rubber band. The growth of "rubber-band government" in this country indicates that a few are persuaded that the American way is just too difficult to manipulate in the cause of bias, privilege and revenge.

Personal and financial records are private, not secret. I protest this encroachment of a police-state vocabulary into areas having nothing to do with national security, a category which itself now shelters an exploding population of cockroaches. As for trade secrets, if they are not patentable, let them continue to depend on closed mouths.

As Gifford Pinchot said long ago, "Laws can't make brains. Laws can't make conscience." But the continued delegation of discretionary powers is, certain as morning, making a mess of America.

Wintertime Memories

Around the first of December, a big bulky package from Sears & Roebuck used to arrive at our house. It always contained our all-wool long-legged underwear, which we hated. There were many pieces of clothing for all four of us. Five-buckle galoshes . . . a tin-headed doll for our little sister . . . mittens that soon helped to heal red chapped knuckles.

Slick white sheets had been replaced by cotton blankets between which oven-warmed flat-irons wrapped in outing flannel were placed. Our little feet cuddled against the warmth which lulled us to sleep in the depth of soft feather beds.

Our grandmother filled blue and white ticking, and gave to each of her 11 sons as they married. My retired father made six quilts of wool suit swatches to pass down to me and my two children. Mine is great to struggle under now, these below-zero nights.

I'm glad I had a father who cared enough to tell me the part he and his family had in building our state.

Pro Hockey Games

It was most encouraging to read last week that ice hockey is at least being considered for Lincoln next winter. It is my strong hope that enough enthusiasm will be generated to at least give it a try for a season or two and, hopefully, a good enough response will be forthcoming by then that it can become a permanent fixture on the Lincoln winter sports scene.

Too often I think we Midwesterners look upon pro hockey as strictly Canadian or at least big-city in nature. Often the rules are hazy to us merely from lack of caring. Admittedly, the medium of television doesn't do the sport justice. I didn't care for hockey until I started going to a few Omaha Knights games in person. Believe me, there's a world of difference. It is possibly the most exciting and definitely the fastest moving of all team sports.

I wish that everyone in Lincoln had seen at least one pro hockey game in person. It would virtually assure Lincoln of a franchise next winter.

The newspaper story of last week made mention that Pershing Auditorium Manager Ike Hoig would appreciate hearing from prospective hockey enthusiasts in regard to a Lincoln venture into this sport. I'd like to encourage everyone in Lincoln and the surrounding area to really get behind this and let like know that he is interested and would attend some games. Things like this don't happen automatically — they take hard work and enthusiasm. Let's take this important initial step and let them know we care.

Which Year, Then?

It's little wonder this nation is in as much trouble as it is, if the rest of the world is like the folks in this territory. They just flatly refuse to face up to or admit that there are problems — or if there are, they say, "Let George do it." Then when George stands up and says he is going to do something, they are all for it but when it comes time to back George up and speak out, they busily back down.

Perhaps they feel that existing problems will just go away. As one man said, there are 15 years of it yet ahead and he didn't want to speak up this year.

And Then, The Questions

With regard to the Jan. 12 Star editorial, "Primary Change laudable," several questions come to mind. The article states that "the advantage to moving the primary elections up to September is seen in shorter campaigns and less expensive campaigns, as well." The questions are: Would the campaigns really be shorter? Would they be less expensive? Who, if anyone, would benefit from a September primary? How would such a change affect the taxpayers of Nebraska? And what would be the effect of a September primary on campaigns and political parties?

As a person who has been involved in many political campaigns, I would like to say there would probably be little difference in the total length of campaigns if the September primary were adopted (LB120). There would probably be only an elongation of the primary. Necessity would then simply require a longer campaign between the candidates of the same political party during the primary.

It is doubtful that the primaries would be less expensive. Eight weeks is not a long time to campaign. Unknown candidates and newcomers to the political scene would be hard-pressed to cover the 93 counties and the myriad of towns and cities to be visited in an energetic campaign. Therefore, the incumbent would have the advantage because, presumably, his name would be better known.

Because of the short duration of the campaign, both candidates would have to rely more heavily on the media to reach the people in outlying (and even heavily) parts of the state with their message. Eight weeks of a campaign for a statewide office might be enough in Rhode Island or New Jersey, but not in a state like Nebraska, where the distances are so great. Therefore, because of heavier media usage, the cost of the campaigns would increase. And the rich would have the advantage.

In addition, the September primary bill would be an additional burden on the taxpayers of Nebraska. The secretary of state estimates that it would cost about $85,000 to finance the election of delegates to the county and national political conventions in a separate May primary during presidential election years. And what about the years in which there is no presidential election? How will the political parties elect delegates to the county convention when the primary will not be held until September?

And practically speaking, how does a candidate organize his campaign for office in only eight weeks? Where does he recruit volunteers in the fall when most of the young people who traditionally volunteer have gone back to school? How does he even get a brochure or a position paper printed in time to be of any value to his campaign? And how does the party pull itself back together after a long (presumably) and bloody primary and get a major candidate elected in eight weeks?

I don't think it can be done. I don't know if most Nebraskans understand all the implications of this bill.

Term Limits Rejected

The Lincoln City Charter Revision Committee struck a blow for democracy Tuesday night.

The advisory group voted 8-3 not to recommend a charter change limiting Lincoln mayors and City Council members to two consecutive terms of office. That proposal has the backing of such Lincoln leaders as Council President Max Denney and Mayor Helen Boosalis.

The reasoning of the revision committee apparently paralleled that of Council member Sue Bailey, however. Mrs. Bailey told the committee Tuesday night that term limits place undue restraints on the voters. It is the people's responsibility to determine whether a mayor or council member should be retained or kicked out of office, she said.

The council can overlook the committee's rejection of the proposal and place the issue of term limits on a city election ballot for voter consideration. But the committee's vote can be seen in advance as reflective of a skeptical public attitude toward curtailing the voter's prerogatives.

Man tends to dilute or bastardize perfectly good and workable concepts by a gradual process to accommodate narrow interests and isolated problems.

Riddling a tax base — income, property or sales — with exemptions is one example.

The same is done with democracy. Lip service is paid to the concept of the people's right to choose but there are always proposals offered to restrict that right.

We're not talking about retaining pure democracy in the sense of all the people voting on each issue, but about keeping representative democracy as pure as possible.

It all boils down to faith in the ability of the people to decide for themselves who should represent them. If they are not watchful enough, or are not smart enough, are gullible or apathetic, the system can be abused by politicians with little talent and character other than ambition. That happens all too often. But not enough to change the system.

We believe, as does Mrs. Bailey, that the constitutional amendment limiting presidential terms is "a dumb amendment;" likewise state and local limitations on terms of officeholders wherever those limits exist.

There are responsibilities and challenges within a system under which people are theoretically supposed to govern themselves. People should not agree to unshoulder that responsibility by bits and pieces. When a little bit of responsibility (such as taking the time to determine an officeholder's fitness to serve at the end of each term) is given away, a little bit of freedom is given away.

The Same Old Stuff

One thoughtful criticism of the media's reporting of political campaigns that has been circulating lately has related to the tendency of reporters to write about what the candidates say and how they are perceived to be doing, but not about what the people want.

That is a legitimate criticism, perhaps. The focus is on the candidate as he flits around the nation, uttering generalities and smiling, and on what the experts think of his chances. The emphasis has not been on what is bothering the people of Iowa or New Hampshire, for example, and what they expect from leadership. Getting out among the people is one goal that hopefully those who report the political scene will strive for.

The media may learn, for one thing, if the people are listening to the candidates and reading the newspapers and distinguishing among remarks the politicians make. It will be interesting to find out whether the voters are still buying the same old stuff.

What same old stuff? For example, this week Gov. Wallace of Alabama was talking about President Ford's proposal to hike the payroll deduction for Social Security. Wallace said he was in favor of Social Security (thus pleasing people collecting or about to collect; those who are old and have little or no other means of support to see them through retirement to the grave) but he doesn't think young people should have to be taxed for it. We imagine the governor was talking about an extra, unfair, burdensome tax, but true to form, Wallace, who pleases the rednecks in Alabama by regarding even the barest decency in prison housing as "coddling" criminals, is trying to please everybody by seeming to advocate a Social Security free lunch.

The Social Security system is in big trouble and everybody knows it. Now is the time for those who aspire to national office to be offering tough talk about how to save it from going broke; about reforming or changing the system to provide for the old without bankrupting the wage earner. But simply saying one believes in Social Security but doesn't want to tax enough to support it is simply offering nothing of value to the debate.

Hopefully the people will react against that kind of old-style nonsense, the media will capture their disgust and glib politicians will learn a lesson.

THE HAGUE — The United States has been astonishingly well served by its ambassadors during the post-war period, despite an unfortunate habit of stuffing the roster with political has-beens or fat-cats and despite occasional congressional tendencies to kick around career diplomats or penny-pinch their expense allowances.

In an era marked by Sen. Joe McCarthy's bullying and Foster Dulles' inability to distinguish loyalty to him from national security — an era marked by a deep sag in State Department morale — the country managed by some miracle to enlist several outstanding envoys unmatched elsewhere.

The non-career Averell Harriman and Ellsworth Bunker served (and serve) so long that they became more expert than the experts. Where does he recruit volunteers in the fall when most of the young people who traditionally volunteer have gone back to school? How does he even get a brochure or a position paper printed in time to be of any value to his campaign? And how does the party pull itself back together after a long (presumably) and bloody primary and get a major candidate elected in eight weeks?

I don't think it can be done. I don't know if most Nebraskans understand all the implications of this bill.

Noise And Noise

Lincoln, Neb.
I just heard on the radio that in time, man intends to produce trains that make no noise. How foolish, especially in this generation and age. The ones who have lived any length of time can't hear half of what is said, so the noise wouldn't bother them. And the generation growing up play everything so loud that one player would do the whole block.

I was really shocked when I went shopping downtown in Lincoln one day recently. What used to be a nice eating place has been turned into a noisy pool-hall. They have slot machines (I always call them "slop" machines).

If all such racket as this has to go on with the younger generation, why pick on the train that goes through town only a few times daily, not 24 hours around the clock?

Green Wood, Wet Cobs

Ansley, Neb.
When we paid our gas bill this month, we thought of the good old cob, wood and coal fires we used to have. We thought the price of coal high, so burned wet and dry cobs to hold the fire a long time, and the heat was good. The same with green wood and dry wood. The kitchen range oven was filled with green wood drying out.

We also had a one-cent pleasure, the best bargain in our history — the one-cent postal card. It brought much joy, happiness and even sadness. It was the top bargain ever.

People were so saving then. We had free "Mr. Whipple" paper catalogues. People rolled string into a ball as they got it. Children used pretty wrapping paper to make chains, with flour paste holding them together. It was a good stormy-day pastime. Old worn wool garments were used for quilt pieces. Calendar sheets were cut into paper for grocery lists. Nothing was wasted.

We paid as we bought things. "Pay As You Go" was the motto.

Capital Punishment

Sargent, Neb.
The "innocent by reason of insanity" plea entered by the defense in the Simants case is a real cop-out. If the criminal didn't know what he was doing when the crime was committed, then he wouldn't know what the state was doing when it strapped him into the electric chair.

The sob-sisters and the bleeding-hearts cry that capital punishment is not a deterrent to crime. They have their terms confused. It is not supposed to be deterrence; it is supposed to be punishment.

The American Party of Nebraska believes that the mandatory death sentence for certain crimes must be restored and that more discipline, not less, is needed for criminals.

Discretionary Boards

Valentine, Neb.
I would like to award our Minnehadzu Cowpie with rabbit clusters to Senator John Cavanaugh for performing the first public disservice of the Bicentennial year.

Senator Cavanaugh has introduced LB 788, which would create still another discretionary board (Nebraska Information Practices) on which to park one's unemployed relatives.

Such a board would further eclipse the freedom of the press as well as menace the legitimate privacy of individuals. What a discretionary board can keep, it can also give away.

Gunnar Myrdal has pointed out again and again that the characteristic method of backward countries is to create discretionary powers instead of laws. A law is a steel rule, not a rubber band. The growth of "rubber-band government" in this country indicates that a few are persuaded that the American way is just too difficult to manipulate in the cause of bias, privilege and revenge.

Personal and financial records are private, not secret. I protest this encroachment of a police-state vocabulary into areas having nothing to do with national security, a category which itself now shelters an exploding population of cockroaches. As for trade secrets, if they are not patentable, let them continue to depend on closed mouths.

As Gifford Pinchot said long ago, "Laws can't make brains. Laws can't make conscience." But the continued delegation of discretionary powers is, certain as morning, making a mess of America.

Wintertime Memories

Lincoln, Neb.
Around the first of December, a big bulky package from Sears & Roebuck used to arrive at our house. It always contained our all-wool long-legged underwear, which we hated. There were many pieces of clothing for all four of us. Five-buckle galoshes . . . a tin-headed doll for our little sister . . . mittens that soon helped to heal red chapped knuckles.

Slick white sheets had been replaced by cotton blankets between which oven-warmed flat-irons wrapped in outing flannel were placed. Our little feet cuddled against the warmth which lulled us to sleep in the depth of soft feather beds.

Our grandmother filled blue and white ticking, and gave to each of her 11 sons as they married. My retired father made six quilts of wool suit swatches to pass down to me and my two children. Mine is great to snuggle under now, these below-zero nights.

I'm glad I had a father who cared enough to tell me the part he and his family had in building our state.

Farmers Plan To Plant More

By United Press International
Nebraska farmers are putting more land to use for growing crops, according to the latest anticipated planting figures released Wednesday by the U.S. Agriculture Department.

Corn acreage estimates were up 4%, soybean acres up 7%, and oats were up 9%.

Don Hulcher of the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics in Lincoln said there were some decreases — down 20% in soybean acres, 8% in barley and 3% in sugar beets — but not enough to offset the increases in actual acres.

Wednesday's report will be the last until April.

Trying To Recoup
Hulcher suggested the increase in acres-planting estimates may be reflecting efforts by some farmers to try and recoup through larger, more efficient operations with the losses experienced with declining markets. As to where that acreage is coming from, he said he had heard from some farmers who used abandoned farmsteads as one way of coming up with more cropland.

Based on farmer anticipations, this year's corn acreage will be

Trial Of Blank For Embezzling To Start Friday

A jury trial for a former county employee charged with embezzling more than $7,000 from the motor vehicle division of the Lancaster County treasurer's Office is expected to begin Friday in Lancaster County District Court.

Darrell Blank, who headed the motor vehicle division for several years, was charged with embezzlement in December 1974, after the shortage was discovered.

The shortage in the Motor Vehicles Department was uncovered during a departmental audit by the state auditor's office.

Dogs Sold By Barrys To Lose Registration

About 96 dogs, sold by Mrs. Elaine Barry of rural Cortland to southeast Nebraska residents, will lose their American Kennel Club registration, according to Paul Firling, AKC executive field agent.

The AKC suspended Mrs. Barry from handling registered dogs in November 1975, because of inaccurate record keeping that did not comply with AKC standards, Firling said.

Firling said he learned of at least 96 dogs Mrs. Barry sold that were alleged to be registrable. He said many buyers sent in the purchase papers and received "valid" papers in their own names.

In Gage County District Court this week, Mrs. Barry and her husband Joseph were temporarily enjoined from showing that they are qualified to handle AKC registered dogs.

That court action stemmed from a petition filed by the Consumer Protection Division of the Nebraska attorney general's office which seeks a permanent injunction against the Barrys.

Third Contender Enters Tussle For 'N'

Enter an unexpected contender in the battle of corporate identity.

The National Broadcasting Co.'s legal tussle with Nebraska Educational Television over seven months' prior use of an abstract "N" identification symbol would get thornier because of what might be described as a seven-year itch.

The surprise lightweight in the lawyers' ring, the National Bank of Cynthia, quietly registered an "N" logo several years ago, according to the Cynthia (Kentucky) Democrat. The symbol is very similar to NBC-TV's and NETV's twin trapezoids connected to form the stylized N.

The bank's logo, however, is flat across the top and bottom, whereas the two broadcast networks' symbols have pointed ends on the upper left and lower right.

"But what apparently cost the national network (NBC) a reported $750,000 in designer's fees cost the Cynthia bank only $300 when it was designed over seven years ago," the Democrat reported.

"Both the Nebraska station and the Cynthia bank are consulting their attorneys to see if some legal action should be taken," the newspaper said.

A bank spokesman said "one of the main legal questions needing an answer is whether the network (NBC) can use its emblem in Kentucky." NBC unveiled its logo with nationwide pomp on Jan. 1, but couldn't seek registration for it before that date.

In another wrinkle possibly intensifying the itch, the Democrat noted, "In addition, the spokesman said, the Cynthia bank has used the 'NBC' as an identifying symbol since 1871."

That was 55 years before NBC was founded. The commercial network abandoned its "NBC" logo — in which the letters intertwined — and its peacock in favor of the new abstract N.

That first drew a poke from NETV, which has used the twin-shaped logo statewide since last fall, and particularly because one of its locally produced programs is being broadcast nationally — sporting what ETV has said viewers could conclude was filched from NBC.

Small Farm Irrigators Handicapped

Walthill (UPI) — A member of the Center for Rural Affairs Wednesday said new investment schemes are changing the complexion of state irrigation financing to the detriment of the small farmer.

Marty Strange said corporate farmers can realize substantial tax advantages from investor financing, but small, independent farmers are at a disadvantage, especially on investor development of irrigation in Nebraska.

He said a 72-page study on the subject, entitled "Wheels of Fortune," was prepared by center board members and extension specialists at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

He said the study indicates corporate and multiple-owner investors are the major force in center-pivot irrigation in the state.

10,000 Pivot Systems
The study noted there are more than 10,000 center-pivot systems in Nebraska. They operate by pumping water through a series of sprinklers on a long pipe that rides on wheels as it rotates about a central point. It can cost up to $60,000 for such a system to irrigate 133 acres.

The abundant supply of underground water with few controls has contributed to the center-pivot boom, the study said, and the systems are popular because of low operating costs and ability to irrigate a wide variety of soils and terrains for which other irrigation methods are not practical.

In Dundy County, the study said, investor financing has become the principal means of irrigation development.

36% In Last Year
Of the 269 center-pivot systems in Dundy County in southwest Nebraska, 97, or 36%, have been installed during the past year. Sixty-seven were put in by investors, with 60 of these by three corporate investors alone.

Financing the systems in Dundy County is complex, the study said, with such devices as limited partnerships attractive to high-income, high-tax-bracket people. Center pivots are being installed there on soils that are extremely sandy and easily eroded by the wind.

Strange said one way to insure that land is not engulfed in corporate investor takeover would be a change in the federal government's tax rules, especially in the area of capital gains.

'Decision For State'
"I think more importantly Nebraska has to make a decision on who will control the land production within the state," he said, "and this is a decision to be made at the state level."

The study indicates corporate and multiple-owner investors are developing the delicate Dundy County soils, with family operator-owners, by and large, developing only the better, less erosion-prone soils.

County Gets Bridges On '2 For 1' System

Because of cooperation and federal funds, local county residents will get two bridges for about the same price as one.

In a move engineered by Lancaster County Engineer Marv Nuernberger, two older bridges, one on West Agnew Road and one over Robinson Creek on North 190th Street, will be replaced with identical bridges. Both structures qualify for federal aid, and Cass County Commissioners have agreed to pay for the Robinson Creek bridge with their federal aid off-system funds, explained Nuernberger.

Lancaster County will then pay the 30% local match on the bridge which connects the two counties and will oversee all the preliminary work and bid letting for both bridges, Nuernberger said.

Lancaster County, using its own federal funds and a local match, will pick up the tab on the second bridge on West Agnew Rd.

The county will save money both by using Cass County's federal aid funds and also by bidding out the two identical bridges at the same time," said Nuernberger, who has brought in more than $2 million in federal aid for county road and bridge projects during his first year in office.

Omaha Schools Plan Objections Due Feb. 2

Omaha (AP) — Federal District Judge Albert Schatz said Wednesday parties have until Feb. 2 to file written objections to the Omaha School District's integration plan.

He set a hearing for Feb. 20 with reference to adoption and approval of the plan. Any alternative plan must be in on or before Feb. 20.

The Omaha School District has been ordered to integrate its schools by next fall.

About 8,000 students, most of them at the elementary and junior high levels, would be transferred under a plan of the Omaha School District.

The plan also calls for nearly all of the 2nd-graders in the district to attend one of six inter-city schools next fall.

Under the plan, 3rd-, 4th-, and 5th-graders now living near the six inner-city schools would be dispersed among the dozen schools, which this year have predominantly white enrollments.

In effect, the plan would make the six inner-city schools "grade level centers" housing kindergartners, 1st- and 2nd-graders from their own attendance areas and 2nd-graders from predominantly white areas.

Included are provisions for health and safety of the children, security precautions, provisions for "special needs" transfers, development of new curriculum, a public acceptance program and others.

On the high school level, only four of the district's schools are not in compliance with the court's guidelines, and officials have said they hoped voluntary measures would correct the imbalance.

Penitentiary Inmate Enters Pleas In Stabbing Of Another Prisoner

An inmate at the Nebraska Penal Complex has pleaded no contest to one charge and guilty to a second charge in connection with an August 1975 stabbing at the penitentiary.

Baron Walker pleaded no contest to an amended charge of assault with intent to do great bodily injury and guilty to a charge of carrying a concealed weapon. District Judge Dale Fahrbruch ordered a presentence investigation.

The charges stem from the stabbing of another inmate, Thomas Turner.

Walker originally was charged with stabbing with intent to kill, wound or maim. An earlier charge of being a habitual criminal was dropped.

Walker entered the penitentiary in October 1971 following his conviction in Kearney County of stealing an automobile and escaping legal custody. Since then, he has received additional sentences for burglary, escape and stealing property.

He was acquitted by a district court jury in 1973 of a charge of assaulting another inmate with intent to kill, wound or maim.

That court action stemmed from a petition filed by the Consumer Protection Division of the Nebraska attorney general's office which seeks a permanent injunction against the Barrys.

The District Court has not yet set a date for any further hearing on that petition, which also seeks restitution to people who have purchased the allegedly improperly represented dogs.

Firling said the AKC will revoke all registrations that Mrs. Barry had handled.

"There is no way we can be sure of the individual dog's background now," he said. "We can't guarantee their pedigree, so we can't register them."

The AKC traced the dogs through names and numbers furnished by the original breeders. Firling said the number of illegally registered dogs may never be known because they can't reach all the breeders.

Most of the dogs were sold between June and September. The removal of the AKC tag will make the dogs "practically valueless" if the owners intend to use them for breeding, Firling said.

Baron Walker pleaded no contest to an amended charge of assault with intent to do great bodily injury and guilty to a charge of carrying a concealed weapon. District Judge Dale Fahrbruch ordered a presentence investigation.

The charges stem from the stabbing of another inmate, Thomas Turner.

Walker originally was charged with stabbing with intent to kill, wound or maim. An earlier charge of being a habitual criminal was dropped.

Walker entered the penitentiary in October 1971 following his conviction in Kearney County of stealing an automobile and escaping legal custody. Since then, he has received additional sentences for burglary, escape and stealing property.

He was acquitted by a district court jury in 1973 of a charge of assaulting another inmate with intent to kill, wound or maim.

ABP, Founder Convicted On Many Fraud Charges

Omaha (AP) — Frank R. West, who founded American Beef Packers, Inc. (ABP), once one of the nation's biggest cattle slaughterers, only to see his empire crumble in limited bankruptcy, will appeal his conviction on federal mail and wire fraud charges.

The 24 guilty verdicts were returned Wednesday by U.S. District Court Judge Robert V. Denney, who presided over a three-week, non-jury trial last fall.

Additionally, Denney found ABP, which stood trial with West, guilty on 32 counts of mail and wire fraud. Attorneys for the corporation said it will be a few days before they make a decision on the possibility of an appeal.

but court observers expect them to take that option or to ask for a new trial.

Denney was lenient in pronouncing sentence on the company, saying, "I don't want to take money from the creditors' pockets."

The judge fined the corporation $100 on each conviction for a total of $3,200. The maximum fine for conviction is 1,000 on each count.

Denney sentenced West, the former ABP president and board chairman, to two-year prison terms on each of the 24 counts, the terms to run concurrently. However, Denney suspended the execution of the sentence and placed West on two years' probation, then fined West the maximum — $1,000 on each count for a total of $24,000.

The maximum jail term for conviction of mail or wire fraud is five years on each count. West could have been given 120 years in prison.

Denney also ordered the corporation and West to evenly split the cost of prosecuting the case, which he estimated at about $5,000.

West, 56, stood silently before Denney, and showed no emotion as the verdict and sentence were read.

The government claimed that ABP officials devised a scheme by which they diverted funds due their largest creditor and mainline source of financing, the General Electric Credit Corp.

White Would Succeed Lucas At North Platte

Dr. R. G. "Gene" White will be recommended as the new director of the University of Nebraska North Platte Station subject to the approval of the NU Board of Regents at their meeting Feb. 14.

Dr. White's appointment will be proposed to the regents by Dr. Adam C. Breckenridge, UNL interim chancellor. White would succeed Dr. Leo Lucas who resigned last August to become state Extension director. A search committee was formed to submit a list of candidates for the post. The appointment would be effective Feb. 16.

Neal Baxter, associate director of the station, has served as acting director of the station and Extension District II since Lucas' resignation.

White has been Extension and research veterinarian at the North Platte Station since 1969. A native of West Virginia, Dr. White attended West Virginia University and Oklahoma State University where he received his doctor of veterinary medicine degree in 1960. In 1971, he received his master of science degree from UNL.

Police May Be Probed At Hastings

Hastings (UPI) — Petitions bearing 63 signatures calling for an investigation into the Hastings Police Dept. have been submitted to a member of the city council.

The petitions, turned over to Councilman John Boumann, stem from the resignation of a police officer who protested procedures involving his duty assignment. Boumann is chairman of the Police and Fire Committee.

The resignation of that officer, Lloyd Krull, is effective Jan. 25. Krull had been working radar duty. But in January shifts were rearranged and Krull was assigned to cruiser duty.

Boumann said his committee was scheduled to meet Wednesday and discuss the situation.

He also said he met with Krull last week and Monday acted as an arbitrator between Krull and Chief Melvin Hall.

"We met for more than three hours and it appears that the differences between Chief Hall and Officer Krull are irreconcilable at this time," Boumann said.

Lower Platte NRD Elects Sieck

Harold Sieck of Pleasant Dale was re-elected chairman of the Lower Platte South Natural Resources District (NRD) by the board of directors at its regular meeting Wednesday.

Other officers elected, all for one-year terms, are vice chairmen, Delbert Todd of Union and Marie Arnot of Cheney; secretary, Owen Perry of Malcolm; and treasurer, Paul Amen of Lincoln.

General manager Hal Schroeder reported to the board that negotiations with the principal owner of land required for Dam 6-C in the North Oak Watershed Project have reached a point at which it may be advisable to purchase the land rather than acquire easements.

In such a case, he pointed out, the 6-C site could become the third public-owned, multipurpose site in the North Oak Project, or the land could be sold following construction.

The board authorized Schroeder to obtain appraisals on the basis of purchasing the 160-acre farm using state funds available for such purposes through the State Natural Resources Commission. Use of those funds requires the sale of the land, with retention of necessary easements, within 10 years, or the NRD may purchase it from the state within that time for the original purchase price.

Burglar May Have Started Fire At Omaha's Immanuel Hospital

Omaha (AP) — A two-alarm fire at the old Immanuel Hospital early Wednesday may have been intentionally started by a burglar, fire officials said.

Chief Fire Inspector Vern Trapp said the blaze apparently began on a couch in a lounge in the southeast corner of the hospital. One alarm was sounded at 2:53 a.m. and a second at 3:02 a.m.

Vending machines in the lounge had been broken into and the burglar may have started the fire "to cover his tracks," Trapp said.

He said the lounge suffered considerable damage. The fire did not spread, but other parts of the hospital received some smoke damage, he said.

Trapp said the fire was extinguished minutes after firemen arrived and the second alarm was "purely a precautionary move."

Trapp said there were no injuries.

5 Omahans Face Murder Charges

Council Bluffs (AP) — First degree murder charges were filed Wednesday in magistrate court against five Omahans in connection with the shooting death of Charles D. Sallis, 31, of Omaha.

County Atty. Lyle Rodenburg said he expected the charges to be accepted by Magistrate Dan McTaggart.

Booked Tuesday night in Omaha on suspicion of homicide were Kathy Sallis, 29, estranged wife of the dead man; Jocquelyn Bell, 27; Charles Reese, 26; Jerry Hildrith, 24, and Isiah Jones, 32, all of Omaha.

Sheriff Lynn Ford said they sent two boxes of evidence to Des Moines Wednesday to be analyzed by the Iowa Bureau of Criminal Investigation.

Sallis was found shot to death Sunday in a roadside ditch with his hands tied behind his back, gangland style.

Lt. James Perry of the Omaha police homicide division said three men and two women were arrested in Omaha, following a tip during the investigation by Omaha police and the Pottawattamie County sheriff's office in Council Bluffs.

One of those arrested was Sallis's estranged wife, who was out on bond awaiting trial on charges of shooting Sallis three times Dec. 17.

Authorities indicated that a conspiracy may have been involved in the shooting. Perry said profit or revenge were possible motives being investigated.

Police said they believe that Sallis was possibly abducted from Omaha and taken to the area near Neola, where he died.

Nursing Homes Nix Patients On Welfare

Omaha (AP) — A nursing home boycott is forcing some Omaha hospitals to keep some welfare patients who ordinarily would be in nursing homes, Douglas County Social Services Director Michael Healey said Wednesday.

The higher cost of hospitalization increases the cost of care, Healey said. Who will pay that cost hasn't been determined.

Some persons on welfare in need of nursing home care are remaining in their own homes because of the boycott, announced about mid-December by the Nebraska Health Care Association, he said.

"I'd estimate the number of patients involved is in the neighborhood of 30, but the total is growing by about five a day," Healey said. Most of these are hospitalized.

The nursing home association said most homes in Nebraska were not admitting Medicaid (welfare) patients because the Medicaid payment is less than the cost of providing care.

The situation at the hospitals raises the question of who will pay for care, Healey said.

Once it has been determined

Priest Fined $18 For Fire Safety Lack

Omaha (AP) — A Catholic priest has been fined $18 in Municipal Court for a fire safety violation in his parish school, but the judge says he is satisfied the Rev. William Kleffman has worked to comply with the code.

Judge Paul Hickman said he imposed the fine because there was a "technical violation," although he said Father Kleffman has corrected some safety problems and may have been unaware of the one that remains. That one, however, can be fixed, Father Kleffman said.

Father Kleffman is pastor of St. Agnes Catholic Church. The violations were found in the parish elementary school.

Crop Group Selects Ramig

North Platte (AP) — The Nebraska Crop Improvement Association elected Wayne Ramig of Gering as its new president during the group's annual two-day meeting here this week. Others elected were: Lyle Stock, Murdock, vice president; Eugene Glock, Rising City, treasurer; and Dean Lancaster, Lincoln, secretary-manager.

Stamford-Alma School Merger Eyed

Stamford (AP) — A public meeting was held Monday night concerning the discontinuance of public school grades 7 through 12 at Stamford. About 68% of the persons attending voted to merge with the schools at Alma. But no formal action has been taken by the school board. The meeting was called for a discussion between members of the two districts of the possibilities of a better education for the students through consolidation, the increasing cost of education, and declining enrollment at Stamford which has fallen to 90 students, with 30 in high school.

Hastings Hospital Rates Rising

Hastings (AP) — Patients at Mary Lanning Hospital in Hastings will be paying a higher rate for care in the future. A spokesman said they would pay an average of $19 more per day for hospital services in 1976. James Kenney, hospital administrator, said the rise in rates was due to payroll increases and supply costs, which will total more than $800,000. He said room rates make up a majority of the increase. Intensive care units will rise from $132 to $144 per day, critically ill from $46 to $56, semi-private from $55 to $66, and private from $66 to $79.

Omaha Man Killed In Crash With Semi Rig

Omaha (AP) — Louis Cappocia, 21, of Omaha, was killed when his vehicle was in collision with a semi truck in southwest Omaha late Monday night.

Officers said the semi was driven by 43-year-old Lavern Stuehm of Kearney.

He was quoted as saying he pulled his vehicle to the outside lane, heading west, and the vehicle driven by Cappocia swerved from the inside lane to the outside lane and crashed into the larger vehicle.

The death raised the Nebraska highway fatality toll for the year to 17 as compared with 14 a year ago.

Diplomats Plan Development Meet

Kearney — Business leaders in south central Nebraska have been invited to attend a Nebraska Diplomats meeting in Kearney today to become acquainted with the state's economic development programs. Glenn Bonacker, Diplomats' president, said the meeting will be attended by Diplomats in the area as well as chamber executives, mayors, bankers, plant managers and industrial development practitioners. George Newton, Fairbury businessman and 1975 Diplomat of the Year, and Ronald J. Mertens, director of the state Department of Economic Development, will address the meeting.

Outstate Planners Select Grand Island

Kearney (UPI) — Grand Island has been selected as the headquarters site during a meeting at Kearney of the agency's 71-county governing board.

In December, the Central Nebraska Comprehensive Health Planning Council received $10,000 in U.S. Health, Education and Welfare Department funds to assist the channeling of other funds to the 71 counties involved in the outstate agency.

Paul Guptill, director of the central Nebraska council, said a search has started for an executive director for the new agency. He said recommendations were expected at the agency's Grand Island meeting Feb. 26

The two other Nebraska agencies are located at Omaha and Lincoln. The agencies have review, comment and recommendation authority over health programs seeking federal funds.

5 Omahans Face Murder Charges

Council Bluffs (AP) — First degree murder charges were filed Wednesday in magistrate court against five Omahans in connection with the shooting death of Charles D. Sallis, 31, of Omaha.

County Atty. Lyle Rodenburg said he expected the charges to be accepted by Magistrate Dan McTaggart.

Booked Tuesday night in Omaha on suspicion of homicide were Kathy Sallis, 29, estranged wife of the dead man; Jocquelyn Bell, 27; Charles Reese, 26; Jerry Hildrith, 24, and Isiah Jones, 32, all of Omaha.

Sheriff Lynn Ford said they sent two boxes of evidence to Des Moines Wednesday to be analyzed by the Iowa Bureau of Criminal Investigation.

Sallis was found shot to death Sunday in a roadside ditch with his hands tied behind his back, gangland style.

Lt. James Perry of the Omaha police homicide division said three men and two women were arrested in Omaha, following a tip during the investigation by Omaha police and the Pottawattamie County sheriff's office in Council Bluffs.

One of those arrested was Sallis's estranged wife, who was out on bond awaiting trial on charges of shooting Sallis three times Dec. 17.

Authorities indicated that a conspiracy may have been involved in the shooting. Perry said profit or revenge were possible motives being investigated.

Police said they believe that Sallis was possibly abducted from Omaha and taken to the area near Neola, where he died.

Nursing Homes Nix Patients On Welfare

Omaha (AP) — A nursing home boycott is forcing some Omaha hospitals to keep some welfare patients who ordinarily would be in nursing homes, Douglas County Social Services Director Michael Healey said Wednesday.

The higher cost of hospitalization increases the cost of care, Healey said. Who will pay that cost hasn't been determined.

Some persons on welfare in need of nursing home care are remaining in their own homes because of the boycott, announced about mid-December by the Nebraska Health Care Association, he said.

"I'd estimate the number of patients involved is in the neighborhood of 30, but the total is growing by about five a day," Healey said. Most of these are hospitalized.

The nursing home association said most homes in Nebraska were not admitting Medicaid (welfare) patients because the Medicaid payment is less than the cost of providing care.

The situation at the hospitals raises the question of who will pay for care, Healey said.

Once it has been determined that a person no longer needs hospital care, Medicaid will pay the hospital only what it would pay a nursing home for skilled care.

The maximum for skilled care is $515 a month. The average cost of a day's care in an Omaha hospital now probably is between $100 and $150, Healey said.

Hospitals apparently must either try to absorb the difference or, in the long run, pass it on to all patients in fees.

Healey said nursing homes in Douglas County tell him they are full or are participating in the boycott. He said it's especially hard to find places for persons needing skilled nursing care, the top level of care offered by nursing homes.

Douglas County Hospital's geriatric sections are full, but officials there have agreed to accept patients needing skilled care if the Social Services Department can transfer some moderate care patients elsewhere, Healey said. The county also is trying to place persons in nursing homes elsewhere in the state and has placed 12 persons outside Douglas County since mid-December.

Note May Scare Off Attractive Widower

By JOANNE FARRIS

QUESTION: "I am a widow, 58. I lost my husband last June. I am terribly lonely. Most of the couples we used to know seemed to take an interest in seeing me for a few months, but now they seldom call. I have a few regular bridge games, and I am a very good bridge player, but I miss the companionship of a man.

"Several years ago my husband and I met an attractive couple at a church supper. We often remarked that we should see more of them, but we never did. Now I have learned that the wife has died. Do you suppose I could write him a note of sympathy and say that I am alone, too, now and would like to renew our acquaintance?

"I suppose the fact that I'm asking you instead of just doing it indicates that I'm afraid of appearing too forward. What do you think?"

ANSWER: Unless he's unusual, I think such a note would scare him off. You one reasonable chance to get to know him in a way that might have a future lies in asking a mutual friend to arrange for you and him to meet at a party or other gathering. You could even go to church with the other couple if they know him and spend a few minutes together after services, and then just see what happens

A good bridge player like you has a golden opportunity to get out and meet new people by joining a bridge club or entering duplicate tournaments. Your whole outlook on life (and on this man, if and when you see him again) will be more outgoing and optimistic if you take steps to make your life more interesting.

We all know that it is never easy to live alone. But I have observed that too frequently widows forget to reciprocate with their friends. Time after time a couple will entertain a widow once, twice, three times, only to find that the widow seems to be unwilling to invite them back. In fact, the widow may not be unwilling only afraid, not knowing how she will deal with such details as mixing the cocktails, carving the roast, pouring the wine, etc.

If you have neglected your married friends, why not do something about it now? Have a brunch or a buffet supper for two or three couples who have been your friends for a long time. Admittedly, you may have to force yourself to invite them,

John Markel, Pioneer Auto Dealer, Dies

Nebraska City (AP) — Services for John H. Markel Sr., 84, who got his first auto distributorship in Nebraska City when he was 16, will be here Thursday.

Mr. Markel died Sunday in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

He formed an auto dealership in Omaha in 1914 and his son, John Jr., currently operates a dealership in west Omaha.

Before retiring in 1953, the elder Markel had operated at no fewer than five locations in Omaha and Lincoln and in Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Graveside services at Wyuka Cemetery in Nebraska City will be at 10 a.m. Thursday.

Survivors include sons John Jr., Omaha, and Thomas O., Denver, a daughter, Mrs. Danna Pawlitzke, Two Rivers, Wis., and a sister, Mrs. I. J. Damwood of California.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

San Francisco — "Mr. Watson, come in here. I want you." So said Alexander Graham Bell into the first telephone on that historic day.

Mr. Watson was in the next room. Mr. Bell could have opened the door and told him.

But no, this was the real thing. Thus teen-agers all over the world got instant communication on vital subjects:

"He asked you to dance? I wouldn't dance with him for anything!"

My salad days were filled with invented wonders. Mr. Morse had already invented the telegraph, but it was so new we only used it for disasters.

When the Western Union boy came on the block, my grandmother peeked out the window to see where lightning had struck.

"She opened it and turned white as a sheet," grandma reported to my grandfather at the dinner table.

My grandfather had bought a brass trimmed Cadillac that was started with voodoo incantations.

"Spin it once more! I think it's catching!"

And the man at the crank would spin it round and round until the engine caught with a roar like a lion.

People were always on their backs under the car coaxing them to respond. The popular song, "Get Out And Get Under" tumbled through open windows from player pianos in the warm summer night.

All around us the world was bursting with wonderful things. We put together simple radios made of copper wire and Quaker Oats cartons.

The milkman still delivered from a cart drawn by a bored horse who knew all the stops. But once a month or so you could see an airplane in the sky.

If you had five dollars, you could go out to the fairgrounds, and a man in a helmet with a flowing scarf would take you up for five glorious minutes.

But who had five dollars? Grandma said she reckoned the Lord would take care of her flying when she got angel wings. She was in no hurry.

I said "Will you kindly get off that phone? I have to make a call!" The teenager shouted down the hall: "In just a minute! This is important!"

I heard her say: "I've got to get off the phone. But tell me: What did he say then?"

Entertaining in your own home and in your own style can be a very creative, fun thing to do. Try it, you'll like it.

QUESTION: "I am a widower, 75 years old. I like to go to parties from time to time, but I'm exhausted from all the affairs I went to over the holidays. What can I do about a very nice-looking, cheerful, young widow (62) whom I've been escorting? She's trying to line me up as her 'special' for the rest of the winter, and I don't want to be at anybody's beck and call."

ANSWER: "Too bad you don't live near the woman who wrote the other letter. You and she could play in the duplicate tournaments together."

No, seriously, I guess you're just going to have to take the bull by the horns and tell her the truth. No doubt you enjoyed the holiday festivities, and she now thinks you're ready to keep up the party-going all winter. It's up to you to make her understand how you feel, and truth is your best bet.

Beat Cops Driving Cruisers

By J. L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

They've been called flatfeet, door-shakers and, probably, a lot worse. But they're disappearing from the scene.

The beat cop, those police patrolmen who were out on foot till all hours of the night checking businesses and watching the motorized world drive by, are taking a new approach in Lincoln.

They're still out on foot, but only when they feel it is necessary, according to Lincoln Police Department officials who have been keeping a cautious eye on the new procedure which was introduced Jan. 11.

Putting it simply, those beat cops are now driving cruisers, parking them, at no specified time, and patrolling an area on foot, checking the security of buildings and keeping tabs on suspicious situations.

The times vary, but it's up to them to know when they should be on foot, according to Lt. Ron Bruder, a member of the "B Shift" which works the late afternoon and early evening hours.

"They might stop the car every hour and make their checks, or more often, depending on the area," Bruder explained referring to one of a series of newly completed maps which show just about everything the officers need to know about a specific area of Lincoln.

The maps, more than just a black-and-white guide, depict every conceivable major crime with a different color, and show the areas of Lincoln where, according to the dictates of history, the incident is most likely to occur.

Also new to the officers is a

"primary" and "secondary" designation of district assignments, or beats. Primary is the major area of an officer's assigned district, the one he devotes full attention to, Bruder said. The secondary is, as the name implies, his next priority.

The new approach, one of several to hit LPD since the arrival of new Police Chief George Hansen, is aimed at "giving the officer more visibility, making him seen more often in his area," Bruder said.

This latter idea, apparently the realization of a "know your officer" approach discussed months ago by Hansen, will eventually get Lincolinites on a "first name basis" with the officers in their area, Bruder added.

"When they have trouble in their area they can call headquarters and ask for Officer Smith," Bruder explained, "and this may make for a more comfortable situation all the way around."

The officers know that the new system will put extra emphasis on their "street-wise" knowledge of the area to which they are assigned, Bruder said. It gives them some freedom of choice in handling matters, but the responsibility is still there, he added.

"We shouldn't be getting a call from a citizen complaining about a traffic jam at 13th and O," Bruder explained. "The officer in that area should be directing traffic if that's what the situation calls for."

As in any new system, Bruder admits, there might be a few flaws, but he adds quickly and optimistically, "I'm sure we can iron them out. We've put a lot of hours of planning into this thing."

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

The mark of a fine declarer is that he hopes for the best but prepares for the worst. Optimism is a healthy asset to have at the bridge table, but pessimism is also a desirable concomitant of card play. You have to be a worrier to be a good card player.

Consider this hand played by Edwin Kantar in the Vanderbilt team of four championship. He opened three hearts and his partner, Ron Von der Porten, responded five notrump. This was the grand slam force and directed South to bid seven hearts with two of the three top trump honors.

Kantar duly obliged and West led the king of diamonds.

It became obvious at once that the grand slam was cold if the spades were divided normally — that is, either 3-3 or 4-2 — so Kantar's only real concern was to try to overcome a 5-1 or 6-0 division, if it existed. This he proceeded to do when he won the diamond and played five rounds of trumps to produce this position:

Now Kantar led another trump, discarding a club from dummy, and East, who could not spare a spade, discarded a club. Kantar thereupon cashed the A-K-Q of spades, discarding two diamonds, and — hoping that East had earlier been forced to unguard clubs — cashed the ace of clubs.

The monarch very obligingly fell on the ace and Kantar calmly tucked away another grand slam.

Beat Cops Driving Cruisers

By J. L. SCHMIDT
Star Staff Writer

They've been called flatfeet, door-shakers and, probably, a lot worse. But they're disappearing from the scene.

The beat cop, those police patrolmen who were out on foot till all hours of the night checking businesses and watching the motorized world drive by, are taking a new approach in Lincoln.

They're still out on foot, but only when they feel it is necessary, according to Lincoln Police Department officials who have been keeping a cautious eye on the new procedure which was introduced Jan. 11.

Putting it simply, those beat cops are now driving cruisers, parking them, at no specified time, and patrolling an area on foot, checking the security of buildings and keeping tabs on suspicious situations.

The times vary, but it's up to them to know when they should be on foot, according to Lt. Ron Bruder, a member of the "B Shift" which works the late afternoon and early evening hours.

"They might stop the car every hour and make their checks, or more often, depending on the area," Bruder explained referring to one of a series of newly completed maps which show just about everything the officers need to know about a specific area of Lincoln.

The maps, more than just a black-and-white guide, depict every conceivable major crime with a different color, and show the areas of Lincoln where, according to the dictates of history, the incident is most likely to occur.

Also new to the officers is a

"primary" and "secondary" designation of district assignments, or beats. Primary is the major area of an officer's assigned district, the one he devotes full attention to, Bruder said. The secondary is, as the name implies, his next priority.

The new approach, one of several to hit LPD since the arrival of new Police Chief George Hansen, is aimed at "giving the officer more visibility, making him seen more often in his area," Bruder said.

This latter idea, apparently the realization of a "know your officer" approach discussed months ago by Hansen, will eventually get Lincolniters on a "first name basis" with the officers in their area, Bruder added.

"When they have trouble in their area they can call headquarters and ask for Officer Smith," Bruder explained, "and this may make for a more comfortable situation all the way around."

The officers know that the new system will put extra emphasis on their "street-wise" knowledge of the area to which they are assigned, Bruder said. It gives them some freedom of choice in handling matters, but the responsibility is still there, he added.

"We shouldn't be getting a call from a citizen complaining about a traffic jam at 13th and O," Bruder explained. "The officer in that area should be directing traffic if that's what the situation calls for."

As in any new system, Bruder admits, there might be a few flaws, but he adds quickly and optimistically, "I'm sure we can iron them out. We've put a lot of hours of planning into this thing."

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

The mark of a fine declarer is that he hopes for the best but prepares for the worst. Optimism is a healthy asset to have at the bridge table, but pessimism is also a desirable concomitant of card play. You have to be a worrier to be a good card player.

Consider this hand played by Edwin Kantar in the Vanderbilt team of four championship. He opened three hearts and his partner, Ron Von der Porten, responded five notrump. This was the grand slam force and directed South to bid seven hearts with two of the three top trump honors.

Kantar duly obliged and West led the king of diamonds.

It became obvious at once that the grand slam was cold if the spades were divided normally — that is, either 3-3 or 4-2 — so Kantar's only real concern was to try to overcome a 5-1 or 6-0 division, if it existed. This he proceeded to do when he won the diamond and played five rounds of trumps to produce this position:

The monarch very obligingly fell on the ace and Kantar calmly tucked away another grand slam.

DEAR ABBY: "Prefers Skirts" who refuses to tip a waitress in trousers has got to be some kind of nut.

In the first place, the boss decides what the employees shall wear.

I'm a 26-year-old mother of two who applied for a job as cocktail waitress in a supper club.

The hours were fine and so was the pay, but when I saw the costume I had to wear, I told the boss I was applying for a job as a cocktail waitress — not a striptease dancer. Needless to say, I didn't take that job.

I'm not putting down waitresses who work in such costumes. If they're hungry enough, they'll wear them. Thank heavens, I wasn't.

MODEST IN HAWAII

DEAR ABBY: I am one of those lucky women who has always looked at least ten years younger than my age. Consequently, when I got into my 40's I started lying about my age.

Not only did I lie to my friends about my age, I also lied to my doctor, which has been costing me money.

You see, I recently went into a hospital and didn't want to admit my real age, so I didn't use my Social Security Medicare card, and I had to pay for everything myself. (The same with my doctor bill.)

How can I overcome this feeling of embarrassment about my real age?

LOOKS YOUNG

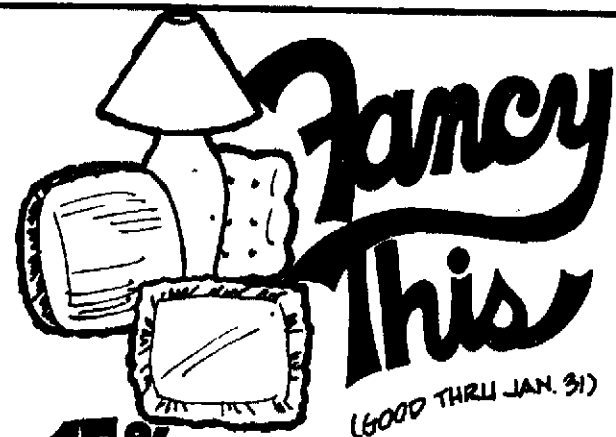

DEAR LOOKS: Look at it this way: A person who looks younger than his age has something of which to be proud. So why not admit it!

BEAUTIFUL BRAGG'S...FOR A BEAUTIFUL YOU

Readers Reply To 'Prefers Skirts'

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Prefers Skirts," who wants to determine dress for all the women in the world:

Thanks to you and your kind, Buddy, 100 million American women are learning the following things: Any woman not physically handicapped is strong enough to open a door and move a chair. Waitresses should be paid a living wage by their employers and not have to depend on the generosity of the customer as if waitresses were performing dogs rewarded with bits of food.

We are also learning that all the "gentlemanly courtesies" you extend (when you are in the mood) are not worth a 60 per cent pay differential, and that when we earn our own money with our own labor, we can pay our own bills and maintain our self-respect as adult human beings (commonly known as "feeling like a man").

dear

And meditate on this for a little while, pal: One hundred million American women get up and dressed every single day without giving one second's thought to how you feel about their outfits. Feel free, Abby, to use my name.

Ford Wants Cuts In Some Ag Programs

Washington (UPI) — President Ford Wednesday called for cuts in a number of farm and rural programs, including some which Congress jealously has defended in the past against attacks from administration economists.

The total proposed Agriculture Department spending in fiscal 1977 was $10.753 billion, down sharply from the $14.214 billion in the current year.

Most of the $3.461 billion in apparent cuts were based either on the timing of federal sales of loan collateral, which has no real impact on government spending, or on proposals to which Congress has been cool in the past such as suggested cuts in child nutrition spending, food stamps and conservation.

A department official said, however, that Congress may give more consideration to economizing now than in most past years because it is operating for the first time under its own program of overall budget ceilings.

Ford's new budget disclosed that the White House will propose legislation combining a number of conservation subsidy programs, currently funded at about $220 million a year, into a single program officials said would be budgeted at $90 million.

Operations affected would include the agricultural conservation program, under which the government pays farmers half or more of the cost of approved conservation practices. Congress recently rejected an administration request to shelve $90 million of the $175 million it previously voted for this aid in the current fiscal year.

The budget showed that farm support costs, at comparatively low levels in recent years because no support subsidies are being paid grain and cotton producers, may decline further in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 — largely because of expected reductions in the cost of supporting tobacco following a cut in flue-cured tobacco planting allotments for 1976.

Net spending by the department's Commodity Credit Corp., an umbrella figure which includes price support and disaster subsidy costs and other related items — excluding costs of a commodity export credit program — was estimated for the upcoming budget year at $968 million, down $163 million from the current year.

Total direct payments of federal cash to farmers, made up mostly of conservation and disaster subsidies, was forecast at $597 million compared with $586 million in the current year and nearly $4 billion in 1973.

Ford said Congress could cut spending another $500 million if it would adopt programs proposed by the administration in 1975 to reform a disaster payment system for grain and cotton farmers and to relax peanut production controls. No action has been taken on either bill.

There were some real changes in spending proposed, however, including a $194 million cutback in overseas food aid resulting from expected lower prices for shipping an almost unchanged volume of food, and a $450 million cut in export sales credits which officials noted could be quickly expanded if needed.

Also, Ford asked Congress to eliminate all appropriations for rural water and waste disposal grants, rural development and fire protection grants, and grants for farm labor housing and self-help housing. Appropriations for those items in the current fiscal year totaled $314 million.

Planned spending on farm research, marketing and consumer protection changed little. Room was made for a number of sizable research fund increases because some construction costs will not recur.

Ford wants to continue the $5 million increase Congress recently voted to stiffen grain inspection, and there will be a new $4 million pilot program — in cooperation with Virginia and North and South Carolina — to test a plan for eradicating the boll weevil.

All That's Required Is $2,596

Washington (AP) — If you and the rest of the 215 million Americans happen to feel like donating an extra $2,596 each to the federal government by the end of fiscal 1977, the national debt could be wiped clean.

That's the per capita share of an obligation that's expected to total $558.2 billion by the end of the next budget year.

Of course the debt is all held by the public, too, so if you happen to hold $2,596 in savings bonds or other government issues, you'd break even.

Budget Reaction Partisan

Washington (UPI) — President Ford's "new realism" budget drew largely partisan reaction on arrival in Congress Wednesday — most Republicans praising its leanness and Democrats decrying its de-emphasis of social programs.

Among the exceptions were GOP Sen. Jacob Javits of New York, who called it "a retreat from federal responsibility," and Democratic Rep. George Mahon of Texas, chairman of the budget-shepherding House Appropriations Committee, who urged party colleagues not to increase it.

One of the harshest critics was House Democratic leader Thomas P. O'Neill: "The President's budget priorities are 100% wrong. Its full impact in slowing the economy would be felt in 1977. We have to worry about the future, not just about the election."

One of the warmer endorsers was Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, the assistant Senate GOP leader: "I can't recall a time when there has been a budget so well presented. It's really a time to put politics aside."

While Mahon argued against increases in light of a "shockingly high" national debt, Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield seemed to suggest the opposite, saying: "We have cut every budget for the last 10 years. Should this be an exception?"

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott said it is "in the interest of the people of this country to hold very closely" to Ford's recommendations.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, running for the Democratic presidential nomination, said that while "the President has made some very substantial cuts in federal spending," the budget still calls for a $43 billion deficit.

"While I withhold judgment on whether he made the cuts in the right places," Bentsen said, "I strongly agree with him on the need to hold the line on spending."

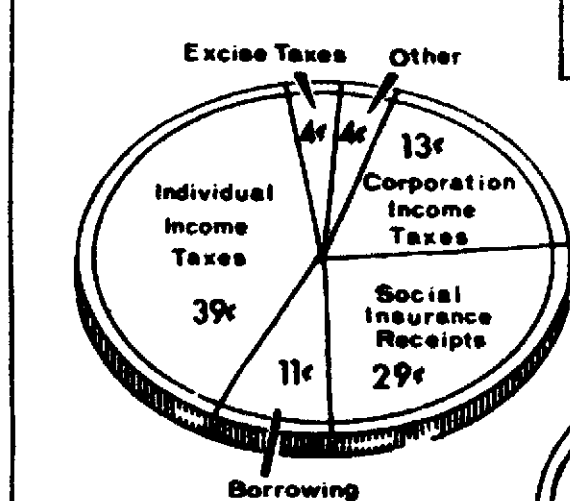

Javits joined Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., chairman of Congress' Joint Economic Committee, in criticizing the employment aspects of Ford's budget.

Javits: "The budget contemplates a retreat from federal responsibility for the well-being of the American people, especially the unemployed."

Humphrey: "The President has managed to produce a budget which will create neither private nor public jobs and which, by his own forecast, will not reduce inflation in 1977."

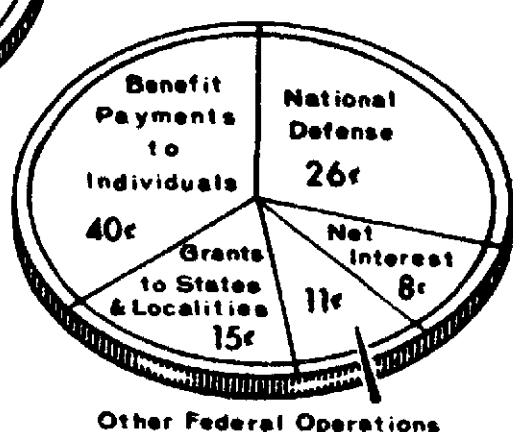

House Republican leader John Rhodes said Ford's proposal to limit the spending increase to 5.5% "is a thoroughly reasonable request. The American people are tired of huge deficits and big government."

Nebraska Projects Listed

Washington (AP) — President Ford included several Nebraska projects Wednesday in his proposed 1977 fiscal year budgets for the National Park Service, the Bureau of Reclamation and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

In the national parks proposal, Ford suggested $314,000 to remove existing obsolete power lines and install underground cables at Scotts Bluff National Monument.

Bureau of Reclamation proposals for Nebraska include:

Pick-Sloan Missouri Basin Program, North Loup Division, $1 million to begin land acquisition for Calamus Dam and Reservoir, continue access road improvement and other preconstruction work.

O'Neill Unit, $1.3 million to begin land acquisition for Norden Dam and Reservoir, improve an access road and other preconstruction work.

Transmission Division, $35,000 advanced from nonfederal sources to continue coordination studies.

Bostwick Division, $180,000 for continued construction of drains.

Farwell Unit, $730,000 to continue construction of drains and canal lining on the Sherman Feeder Canal.

Frenchman-Cambridge Division, $225,000 to continue drain construction and work on Frenchman Creek channel protective measures.

A Corps of Engineers water project proposal for Nebraska seeks $1.1 million for Papillion Creek, tributaries and lakes flood-control construction.

For corps Missouri River work, the President's proposals include:

Levee system in Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska, flood control construction, $3.2 million.

Sioux City to mouth, navigation construction, $2.2 million.

Ford Wants Pension 'Kicker' To Get The Boot

Washington (AP) — Abolition of the "1% kicker" in the formula for federal civilian and military pension cost-of-living adjustments is recommended in President Ford's budget for fiscal 1977.

The kicker is designed to compensate retirees for the lag time between actual rises in living costs and the time these increases are compensated by an increase in pensions.

Associated Press calculations last February, however, showed that the "kicker" operates in such a way that over a period of time it overcompensates for the lag time loss and could result in excess payments of more than $100 billion by 1990.

Revisions in the formula have since been proposed,

Ford Wants Cuts In Some Ag Programs

Washington (UPI) — President Ford Wednesday called for cuts in a number of farm and rural programs, including some which Congress jealously has defended in the past against attacks from administration economists.

The total proposed Agriculture Department spending in fiscal 1977 was $10.753 billion, down sharply from the $14.214 billion in the current year.

Most of the $3.461 billion in apparent cuts were based either on the timing of federal sales of loan collateral, which has no real impact on government spending, or on proposals to which Congress has been cool in the past such as suggested cuts in child nutrition spending, food stamps and conservation.

A department official said, however, that Congress may give more consideration to economizing now than in most past years because it is operating for the first time under its own program of overall budget ceilings.

Ford's new budget disclosed that the White House will propose legislation combining a number of conservation subsidy programs, currently funded at about $220 million a year, into a single program officials said would be budgeted at $90 million.

Operations affected would include the agricultural conservation program, under which the government pays farmers half or more of the cost of approved conservation practices. Congress recently rejected an administration request to shelve $90 million of the $175 million it previously voted for this aid in the current fiscal year.

The budget showed that farm support costs, at comparatively low levels in recent years because no support subsidies are being paid grain and cotton producers, may decline further in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1 — largely because of expected reductions in the cost of supporting tobacco following a cut in flue-cured tobacco planting allotments for 1976.

Net spending by the department's Commodity Credit Corp., an umbrella figure which includes price support and disaster subsidy costs and other related items — excluding costs of a commodity export credit program — was estimated for the upcoming budget year at $968 million, down $163 million from the current year.

Total direct payments of federal cash to farmers, made up mostly of conservation and disaster subsidies, was forecast at $597 million compared with $586 million in the current year and nearly $4 billion in 1973.

Ford said Congress could cut spending another $500 million if it would adopt programs proposed by the administration in 1975 to reform a disaster payment system for grain and cotton farmers and to relax peanut production controls. No action has been taken on either bill.

There were some real changes in spending proposed, however, including a $194 million cutback in overseas food aid resulting from expected lower prices for shipping an almost unchanged volume of food, and a $450 million cut in export sales credits which officials noted could be quickly expanded if needed.

Also, Ford asked Congress to eliminate all appropriations for rural water and waste disposal grants, rural development and fire protection grants, and grants for farm labor housing and self-help housing. Appropriations for those items in the current fiscal year totaled $314 million.

Planned spending on farm research, marketing and consumer protection changed little. Room was made for a number of sizable research fund increases because some construction costs will not recur.

Ford wants to continue the $5 million increase Congress recently voted to stiffen grain inspection, and there will be a new $4 million pilot program — in cooperation with Virginia and North and South Carolina — to test a plan for eradicating the boll weevil.

Budget Reaction Partisan

Washington (UPI) — President Ford's "new realism" budget drew largely partisan reaction on arrival in Congress Wednesday — most Republicans praising its leanness and Democrats decrying its demerits of social programs.

Among the exceptions were GOP Sen. Jacob Javits of New York, who called it "a retreat from federal responsibility," and Democratic Rep. George Mahon of Texas, chairman of the budget-shepherding House Appropriations Committee, who urged party colleagues not to increase it.

One of the harsher critics was House Democratic leader Thomas P. O'Neill: "The President's budget priorities are 100% wrong. Its full impact in slowing the economy would be felt in 1977. We have to worry about the future, not just about the election."

One of the warmer endorsers was Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, the assistant Senate GOP leader: "I can't recall a time when there has been a budget so well presented. It's really a time to put politics aside."

While Mahon argued against increases in light of a "shockingly high" national debt, Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield seemed to suggest the opposite, saying: "We have cut every budget for the last 10 years. Should this be an exception?"

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott said it is "in the interest of the people of this country to hold very closely" to Ford's recommendations.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, running for the Democratic presidential nomination, said that while "the President has made some very substantial cuts in federal spending," the budget still calls for a $43 billion deficit.

"While I withhold judgment on whether he made the cuts in the right places," Bentsen said, "I strongly agree with him on the need to hold the line on spending."

Javits joined Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., chairman of Congress' Joint Economic Committee, in criticizing the employment aspects of Ford's budget.

Javits: "The budget contemplates a retreat from federal responsibility for the well-being of the American people, especially the unemployed."

Humphrey: "The President has managed to produce a budget which will create neither private nor public jobs and which, by his own forecast, will not reduce inflation in 1977."

House Republican leader John Rhodes said Ford's proposal to limit the spending increase to 5.5% "is a thoroughly reasonable request. The American people are tired of huge deficits and big government."

Nebraska Projects Listed

Washington (AP) — President Ford included several Nebraska projects Wednesday in his proposed 1977 fiscal year budgets for the National Park Service, the Bureau of Reclamation and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

In the national parks proposal, Ford suggested $314,000 to remove existing obsolete power lines and install underground cables at Scotts Bluff National Monument.

Bureau of Reclamation proposals for Nebraska include:

Pick-Sloan Missouri Basin Program, North Loup Division, $1 million to begin land acquisition for Calamus Dam and Reservoir, continue access road improvement and other preconstruction work.

O'Neill Unit, $1.3 million to begin land acquisition for Norden Dam and Reservoir, improve an access road and other preconstruction work.

Transmission Division, $35,000 advanced

from nonfederal sources to continue coordination studies.

Bostwick Division, $180,000 for continued construction of drains.

Farwell Unit, $730,000 to continue construction of drains and canal lining on the Sherman Feeder Canal.

Frenchman-Cambridge Division, $225,000 to continue drain construction and work on Frenchman Creek channel protective measures.

A Corps of Engineers water project proposal for Nebraska seeks $1.1 million for Papillion Creek, tributaries and lakes flood-control construction.

For corps Missouri River work, the President's proposals include:

Levee system in Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska, flood control construction, $3.2 million.

Sioux City to mouth, navigation construction, $2.2 million.

Dramatic Changes Proposed In Delivery Of Social-Welfare

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration's new budget proposes dramatic changes in the way that social-welfare money is delivered to millions of needy persons, and sometimes-painful ways of paying for it.

The budget delivered to Congress on Wednesday recommends higher Social Security taxes for wage earners and their employers, more out-of-pocket outlays for non-catastrophic medical care of the elderly, and the beginning of what some see as a gradual cut-back in 59 health, education, social-services and child-nutrition programs.

Those 59 programs, ranging from school hot lunches to rat control and topped off by Medicaid, the big health program for the poor, would be transformed into four big spigots pouring about $18 billion to states in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

State and local governments would no longer be required to put up prescribed amounts of matching funds. But within seven or eight years, when all federal strings were cut, they would have to submit spending plans to Washington for advance approval and account for the money afterward.

Under the consolidation plan, only child-nutrition spending would be reduced significantly, by about $900 million. States would be given freer rein on how to spend funds within each of the four broad areas.

A proposed new distribution formula based on each state's population below the poverty line would give more of the $10 billion in federal Medicaid funds to smaller states, especially those in the South. To ease the loss for big industrial states, $500-million increases would be requested in each of the next two years.

More than 20 states cut back their optional Medicaid services last year to save money, and the governors of some of the largest states have asked the federal government to take over all welfare spending, an indication that Ford's proposal may get a chilly reception in Congress.

He did ask Congress for authority over the next five years to determine administratively the equity and benefits in $26 billion worth of welfare programs including Aid to Families with Dependent Children, Supplemental Security Income and food stamps.

Any proposed changes would be subject to congressional review and disapproval. The administration said the confusing array of rules and regulations often distributes welfare assistance inequitably, breaks up families and discourages some from seeking jobs.

each for employers and employees is necessary, the President concluded, because the trust funds which serve as a reserve would otherwise be exhausted by the end of the decade.

The higher tax would yield about $4.5 billion a year. Coupled with a recommendation that future Social Security benefits for those now working be determined by wage increases while benefit increases for those already retired be tied solely to price increases, the retirement system's income and outgo would be nearly balanced, the administration said.

But he proposed phasing out both the public-service programs and the expanded unemployment-benefit program after the presidential election in November. This would mean jobless workers would get coverage for 39 weeks instead of the 65 weeks now provided by special legislation.

An estimated 11.5 million workers will collect unemployment benefits in 1976, and 9.6 million in 1977, the administration predicted.

In an effort to control Medicare costs for the aged and disabled, the budget proposes price controls of 7-per-cent increases for hospitals and nursing homes and 4 per cent for physicians next year, a higher annual deductible — from $60 to $100 — for patients visiting a doctor's office, and 10-per-cent cost sharing for each day of hospitalization.

In exchange for higher out-of-pocket expenditures for short-term hospital stays, which at present are limited to $104 for the first 60 days, the administration would protect the elderly against catastrophic illness by limiting their annual liability to $500 for hospital care and $250 for physician treatment.

Ford's Forecast Rosier Than Congress's

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration's economic forecast for the coming fiscal year is far rosier than one by congressional economists.

Critics say that under the Ford budget proposal, the nation's economic recovery would sputter in 1977, with unemployment and inflation both rising significantly.

In presenting Congress with a $94.2-billion budget for the year beginning Oct. 1, Ford on Wednesday predicted economic growth would continue through this decade, and he forecast gradual improvements in the inflation and unemployment rates.

In advance of the budget, the staff of Congress' Joint Economic Committee warned that the nation's recovery from recession is "likely to sputter out" by 1977 unless the government makes major economic policy changes.

There are no such changes in the Ford budget, just less federal spending.

According to the Ford forecast, unemployment, which averaged a 34-year high of 8.5 per cent last year when the nation was in the throes of the worst recession since World War II, is expected to average 7.7 per cent over the year in 1976 and 6.9 per cent in 1977. Further declines are forecast, but the rate isn't expected to drop below 5 per cent before 1980.

Inflation as measured by the Consumer Price Index rose 6.9

per cent last year, down dramatically from the 12.2 per cent rate of 1974. But it was still high by historical standards. The administration projects inflation of 5.9 per cent in 1976 and 1977, before dropping to a 4 per cent rate at the end of the decade.

The rate of economic growth will rebound from declines in each of the past two recession years and average 6.2 per cent in 1976. Growth will be less vigorous in 1977, increasing 5.7 per cent, then pick up near 6 per cent in 1978, according to Ford.

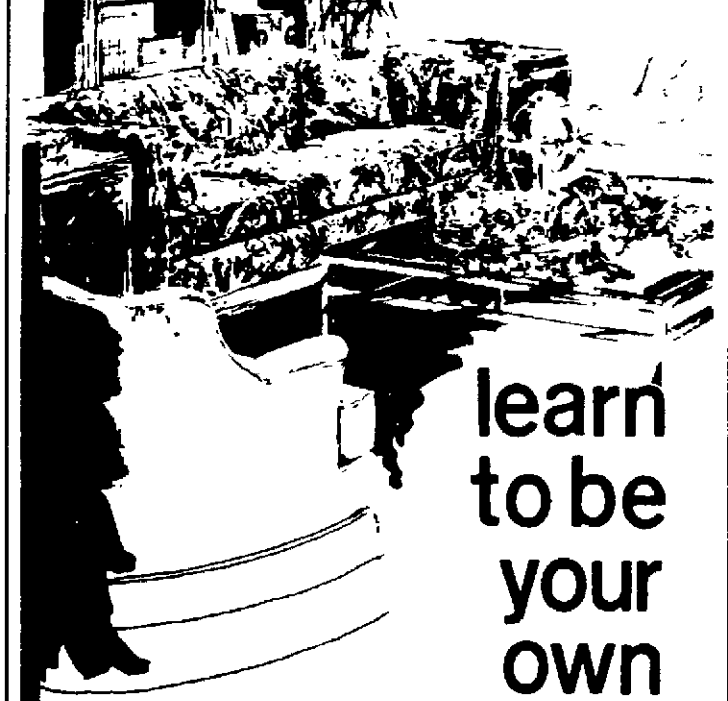

The Joint Economic Committee staff reported that Ford's plan to hold down spending with a $395-billion budget would slow the economic recovery. The impact would hit in calendar 1977,

$101.1 Billion Military Budget Calls For Manpower Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. military spending for one year would rise above $100 billion for the first time under the proposed 1977 budget sent to Congress by President Ford on Wednesday.

The new budget also calls for the first increase in military manpower since the Indochina war began winding down in the late 1960s.

And even as Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger resumed crucial strategic arms limitation talks with the Soviet Union, Ford's budget message urged steady development of the U.S. nuclear arsenal and increased spending on more traditional combat forces.

learn to be your own interior designer

"Despite an increase in Soviet defense spending, military personnel levels and equipment modernization, an acceptable military balance exists in the world today," Ford said in his budget message.

The President said many of his proposals are needed "to maintain the military balance in the interim," before agreements are reached on arms limitation and negotiations for withdrawal of U.S. and Soviet troops from Europe.

There was no sign that the firing of former Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger had any impact on the proposed military budget, which would increase spending from $92.8 billion in fiscal year 1976 to $101.1 billion in 1977, only partly because of inflation.

The budget delivered to Congress on Wednesday recommends higher Social Security taxes for wage earners and their employers, more out-of-pocket outlays for non-catastrophic medical care of the elderly, and the beginning of what some see as a gradual cut-back in 59 health, education, social-services and child-nutrition programs.

Those 59 programs, ranging from school hot lunches to day care and topped off by Medicaid, the big health program for the poor, would be transformed into four big spigots pouring about $18 billion to states in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

State and local governments would no longer be required to put up prescribed amounts of matching funds. But within seven or eight years, when all federal strings were cut, they would have to submit spending plans to Washington for advance approval and account for the money afterward.

Under the consolidation plan, only child-nutrition spending would be reduced significantly, by about $900 million. States would be given freer rein on how to spend funds within each of the four broad areas.

A proposed new distribution formula based on each state's population below the poverty line would give more of the $10 billion in federal Medicaid funds to smaller states, especially those in the South. To ease the loss for big industrial states, $500-million increases would be requested in each of the next two years.

More than 20 states cut back their optional Medicaid services last year to save money, and the governors of some of the largest states have asked the federal government to take over all welfare spending, an indication that Ford's proposal may get a chilly reception in Congress.

He did ask Congress for authority over the next five years to determine administratively the equity and benefits in $26 billion worth of welfare programs including Aid to Families with Dependent Children, Supplemental Security Income and food stamps.

Any proposed changes would be subject to congressional review and disapproval. The administration said the confusing array of rules and regulations often distributes welfare assistance inequitably, breaks up families and discourages some from seeking jobs.

each for employers and employees is necessary, the President concluded, because the trust funds which serve as a reserve would otherwise be exhausted by the end of the decade.

The higher tax would yield about $4.5 billion a year. Coupled with a recommendation that future Social Security benefits for those now working be determined by wage increases while benefit increases for those already retired be tied solely to price increases, the retirement system's income and outgo would be nearly balanced, the administration said.

But he proposed phasing out both the public-service programs and the expanded unemployment-benefit program after the presidential election in November. This would mean jobless workers would get coverage for 39 weeks instead of the 65 weeks now provided by special legislation.

An estimated 11.5 million workers will collect unemployment benefits in 1976, and 9.6 million in 1977, the administration predicted.

Ford's Forecast Rosier Than Congress's

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration's economic forecast for the coming fiscal year is far rosier than one by congressional economists. Critics say that under the Ford budget proposal, the nation's economic recovery would sputter in 1977, with unemployment and inflation both rising significantly.

In presenting Congress with a $394.2-billion budget for the year beginning Oct. 1, Ford on Wednesday predicted economic growth would continue through this decade, and he forecast gradual improvements in the inflation and unemployment rates.

In advance of the budget, the staff of Congress' Joint Economic Committee warned that the nation's recovery from recession is "likely to sputter out" by 1977 unless the government makes major economic policy changes.

There are no such changes in the Ford budget, just less federal spending.

According to the Ford forecast, unemployment, which averaged a 34-year high of 8.5 per cent last year when the nation was in the throes of the worst recession since World War II, is expected to average 7.7 per cent over the year in 1976 and 6.9 per cent in 1977. Further declines are forecast, but the rate isn't expected to drop below 5 per cent before 1980.

Inflation as measured by the Consumer Price Index rose 6.9

per cent last year, down dramatically from the 12.2 per cent rate of 1974. But it was still high by historical standards. The administration projects inflation of 5.9 per cent in 1976 and 1977, before dropping to a 4 per cent rate at the end of the decade.

The rate of economic growth will rebound from declines in each of the past two recession years and average 6.2 per cent in 1976. Growth will be less vigorous in 1977, increasing 5.7 per cent, then pick up near 6 per cent in 1978, according to Ford.

The Joint Economic Committee staff reported that Ford's plan to hold down spending with a $395-billion budget would slow the economic recovery. The impact would hit in calendar 1977, it predicted, with economic growth slowing to 1.9 per cent, unemployment increasing to 9 per cent and inflation continuing at a 6.5 per cent pace.

But Ford asserted that his budget would improve the prospects for steady growth "that we can sustain."

The President asked for $1.7 billion in supplemental funds for 1976 to continue funding the existing 310,000 public-service jobs created to relieve high unemployment.

But he proposed phasing out both the public-service programs and the expanded unemployment-benefit program after the presidential election in November. This would mean jobless workers would get coverage for 39 weeks instead of the 65 weeks now provided by special legislation.

An estimated 11.5 million workers will collect unemployment benefits in 1976, and 9.6 million in 1977, the administration predicted.

$101.1 Billion Military Budget Calls For Manpower Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. military spending for one year would rise above $100 billion for the first time under the proposed 1977 budget sent to Congress by President Ford on Wednesday.

The new budget also calls for the first increase in military manpower since the Indochina war began winding down in the late 1960s.

And even as Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger resumed crucial strategic arms limitation talks with the Soviet Union, Ford's budget message urged steady development of the U.S. nuclear arsenal and increased spending on more traditional combat forces.

"Despite an increase in Soviet defense spending, military personnel levels and equipment modernization, an acceptable military balance exists in the world today," Ford said in his budget message.

There was no sign that the firing of former Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger had any impact on the proposed military budget, which would increase spending from $92.8 billion in fiscal year 1976 to $101.1 billion in 1977, only partly because of inflation.

Schlesinger, a forceful advocate of higher defense spending, said after he was dismissed Oct. 9 that Ford wanted sharp cuts in the size of the nation's military forces. The new budget proposal indicates any reductions were largely restored under Schlesinger's successor, Donald M. Rumsfeld, a close political ally of Ford's.

To complete growth of the Army from 13 to 16 divisions, the budget would increase Army strength by 8,000 men and women to 790,000. To man 15 new Navy ships taking to the sea in 1977 — including three nuclear attack submarines — the Navy would grow by 14,000 sailors.

By contrast, Air Force strength would be cut by 13,000 while civilian employees of the Pentagon would drop by 26,000. Total military strength would remain about 2.1 million.

The President also proposed a package of $2.8 billion in various defense spending cuts, including a reduction of the Naval Reserve by 40,000 members, a slowdown in the pace of military pay and fringe benefit increases, and a phased cut in federal subsidies for military commissaries.

A number of military bases also are expected to be closed, according to Pentagon sources.

The budget also indicated that the Pentagon is taking a second look at a policy of giving military doctors bonuses for re-enlisting. Sharp increases were

Cipriano Displeased Despite NU Victory

By MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Joe Cipriano hardly seemed like a winning basketball coach.

"We weren't ready to play in the second half. We were very fortunate to win," he said disgustedly after Nebraska's 68-67 victory Wednesday night over Oklahoma at the NU Coliseum.

"We got a poor effort defensively from some of our players," he said. "We shot so well in the first half (76.9 per cent from the field) that it had a lot to do with it."

What angered Cipriano was Nebraska holding a 14-point lead on five occasions in the first half, yet never really playing with enthusiasm or determination. It was just as he had warned earlier this week.

"We were out-played, out-rebounded and out-hustled. Thanks to the home crowd they gave us a lift when we needed it," he added.

"Look I've told you before, if we don't play together, we're a very mediocre club. We've got to play at both ends of the court and that was proven tonight."

"Defensively, we really let down. We didn't stop them. We didn't do a good job inside. Nobody played that well." We were just standing around watching. Shooting leads to complacency."

Enough of the negative.

The eventual hero's role went to junior Rickey Harris who hit two free throws with 12 seconds left with Nebraska trailing, 67-66. The Sooners took that lead on two free throws from Billy Graham, who paced OU with 20 points.

"That's the first time I've been in a game where it relied on me," said the Denver junior. "I thought about the South Carolina game (where he missed a crucial free throw). Maybe this made up for it."

"We shoot a lot of free throws in practice, so it really isn't so bad. I knew I just couldn't psych myself out. I just relaxed, and I knew all along that they were going in when I shot them."

In achieving a 40-30 halftime lead, Nebraska fired in 20 of 26 field goal attempts. Oklahoma stayed close by hitting 12 free throws.

One key factor in the first-half surge was junior forward Bob Siegel. The Fairbury native hit all six field goal attempts and had 12 points.

Yet, like most players, he was far from pleased with the effort.

"We weren't ready to play and if we're not ready to play we can't beat anybody."

Admitting he hasn't shot well occasionally

in the past, he discounted talk that he was not a proficient shooter.

"I really don't feel I'm not a shooter," he said after hitting all seven field goal attempts. "Just because there were some games that I didn't score a lot, that doesn't mean I can't shoot. Maybe I was looking forward to shooting more tonight."

Although taking game-high scoring honors with 23 points, Nebraska's senior guard Jerry Fort was forced to miss part of the game.

"I asked to be taken out since I was tired there in the second half. I don't know what happened. We had a hard time covering them."

"They (OU) sagged far back on defense and it was hard to get by them," he noted. "Then they got behind some picks and hit some baskets. We were just lucky to win."

The victory pushed Nebraska to 2-0 in Big Eight action and 11-4 overall. The loss dropped the Sooners to 0-2 in league play and 3-11.

The victory certainly proved Oklahoma has improved since the Big Eight Tournament in late December when Nebraska tripped the Sooners convincingly, 75-53.

"They all are better, especially Eddie Fields (OU guard who hit 10 points and earned 14 assists)," said Nebraska guard Steve Willis.

"The coaches told me to turn Fields. He was penetrating and it seemed like he had really worked on his ball-handling since the KC game."

"It seemed like he wasn't even looking at the basket, but he's really improved," the senior guard added.

The Huskers connected on 62.2 per cent of its field goals while OU hit on 56.5 per cent.

Nebraska travels to Colorado Saturday and Oklahoma State next Wednesday before returning to the NU Coliseum to meet league favorite Missouri on Jan. 31.

"We'll play a lot better at Colorado. We have to," said Siegel confidently.

Trickey Resigns As ISU Coach

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Iowa State University lost its second basketball coach in two years Wednesday when Ken Trickey resigned because of "problems that prevent the basketball program from making the progress that we all want it to make."

He did not elaborate on the problems, but said Athletic Director Lou McCullough influenced him "in no way" to resign after only a year and a half as the Cyclone coach.

Coaching duties go to assistants Gus Guydon and Jack Sutter, the administration said, until a replacement for Trickey is found.

"In order for alumni and supporters of the program to all get behind the basketball program, we felt that a coaching change for the next year would be beneficial," explained Trickey, a native of Cairo, Ill.

Trickey managed only a 1-14 record this season and 1-1 in the Big Eight Conference. In his first year of coaching in 1975, the Cyclones finished at 10-16.

"We have a young team who has not won as many games as all of us would have liked in my year and a half," said Trickey. "And I hope they will understand my decision and go on and play like I know they can play," he added in a letter to the ISU administration.

The ISU performance was in sharp contrast to Trickey's record at Oral Roberts University, Tulsa, Okla., where his mark from 1969-74 was 118-23. He was voted National Basketball Coach of the Year in 1972 by the American Football and Basketball Coaches Conference.

Although his plans are indefinite, Trickey assured an interviewer that getting a job has not been a problem in the past.

"It's really funny," he said. "I got back in the office today, I had a call about a possible job, and I've never had any trouble getting a job."

Oklahoma's Bliss To Protest Officiating

By DAVE SITTLER

Just before Dave Bliss departed his assistant coaching position at Indiana for the head basketball job at Oklahoma last year, Indiana coach Bobby Knight gave the youthful Bliss some advice.

"You're 32 years old now and look 27," Knight told his protege. "Next year you'll be 33 and look 45."

"Next year" may have arrived Wednesday night at the Nebraska Coliseum. In only 12 seconds, Bliss probably added a few quick years not to mention several gray hairs as his club was edged, 68-67.

Bliss' rapid aging process occurred in the final 12 seconds of the game when his players got off three shots at the bucket but couldn't get one to drop as the Nebraska defenders frantically tried to preserve the win with some rugged defense.

An incensed Bliss thought Nebraska's defensive efforts were more than a little rugged as Oklahoma players John McCullough, Rick McNeil and Billy Graham all fired at the bucket but couldn't put the ball in the hole.

"I've never been one to criticize officials," Bliss said as he ripped open his shirt in the Sooner lockerroom. "But there is absolutely no way I can justify the performance of the officials in the last 12 seconds to my kids."

Asked if he was going to protest the game to the Big Eight conference Bliss said, "You bet your sweet (expletive deleted) I am."

Bliss didn't hesitate to explain why he thought the officials, John Overby and Roy Clymer, didn't whistle a foul against any Nebraska player in the final hectic moments.

"I'm a first year coach in the Big Eight and am playing a lot of freshman (four)," he said. "First year coaches with freshmen are not supposed to win games like this."

Continuing to reflect on the final moments Bliss said, "It's easy to make free throws when you're 20 points ahead. Just like it's easy to referee a game when a team is 20 points ahead."

"But I expect my players to perform under pressure when the game is close and I expect the same performance out of the officials."

"It's really difficult for me to understand some of the things that occurred," Bliss continued, "because those referees working the game are supposed to be qualified and competent people."

Bliss did find solace in the fact his club battled back from a 14 point deficit in the first half. And he was impressed with Nebraska guard Jerry Fort who hit 8 of 9 shots in the first half.

"God couldn't have stopped Jerry Fort in the first half," Bliss said. "He's an exceptional player."

Missouri, KSU Gain Conference Victories

From News Wires

Missouri retained its Big Eight Conference lead with an 89-67 whipping of Oklahoma State, while Kansas State moved to third in the standings with a 70-63 win over Colorado.

Missouri overcame second-half foul trouble with a strong bench effort and 21 points from Willie Smith. MU's frontline starters, Kim Anderson, Jim Kennedy and Stan Ray, sat out the final 16 minutes of the game with four fouls each.

The Tiger guards quickly took charge as Smith and Jeff Currie scored 20 of the Tigers' 24 points in a nine-minute stretch early in the second half.

Then the Missouri defense held the Cowboys scoreless for nearly five minutes while the Tigers were notching 11 straight points for an 82-53 bulge with 5:33 remaining.

Oklahoma State responded by running off 11 of its own to close the gap for the Cowboys, now 68 and 0-2 in the Big Eight.

Missouri's 22nd straight win at home left the Tigers, ranked 15th by United Press International, 14-2 and 2-0 in the conference.

Smith's 21 points led all scorers and Anderson threw in all 16 of his points in the first half. Currie had 12 and led all rebounders with nine.

Kansas State, using a pressing man-to-man defense, held the Buffaloes scoreless for stretches of six and a half and four minutes in the first half and opened up leads of as many as 24 points in Ahearn Field House in Manhattan.

Colorado rallied behind the shooting of forward Dave Logan, who had a game-high 22 points, and freshman guard Emmett Lewis, who had 17.

Still, a 68-61 deficit with 1:15 left to play and the final margin were the closest the Buffaloes, now 1-1 in conference and 4-10 overall, ever came.

K-State, 1-1 and 10-5, was led by guard Chuckie Williams, who shot 20 points and moved into the No. 3 position on the Wildcat all-time scoring list with 1,123 career points.

Clemson Upsets Maryland

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI) — Clutch shooting by Clemson reserves Greg Coles and Stan Rome paced the Tigers in a second half surge Wednesday night which carried them to an 82-77 upset over No. 3 ranked Maryland in an Atlantic Coast Conference game.

Rome's first basket of the game tied the contest at 62 with 6:15 left. Coles followed with a six-foot jumper from the base line to give Clemson the lead for good, and Rome boosted the lead to five points on a three-point play.

The Tigers' bench had to take over the scoring load when seven-foot center Tree Rollins got his fourth foul early in the second half. Rollins wound up leading the team scoring with 16 points but had to play cautiously until he ultimately fouled out with 2:15 left.

Coles wound up with 12 points, including nine in the second half.

By RANDY YORK

The Nebraska School Activities Association (NSAA) can't afford to cross its fingers and hope for the best.

If Nebraska's new sports center isn't ready to house the state high school basketball tournament Mar. 11, 12 and 13, the NSAA must have an alternate plan.

"The situation is tough and go," Rex Jones, an NSAA assistant executive secretary, said Wednesday. "We've already told the Board of Control we'll draw up schedules for both state tournament possibilities."

"I understand the floor man hasn't started laying the floor at the new place," Jones noted. "If he doesn't start by next Monday, I just don't know."

"We talked with Jim Ross (Nebraska's assistant athletic director, who will be in charge of the new sports center) last week and he said it depends on who you talk to as to when the place will be ready," Jones said. "Everyone has a different answer."

Whatever materializes, the NSAA plans at least some state tournament competition at the Coliseum. "It hasn't seen its last tournament game yet," Jones said.

The state tourney countdown continues, but the regular season rolls on. Class A's top-rated Grand Island plays at Fremont Friday night.

Class B's top-ranked Sidney plays at Ogallala Friday night. Wood River, No. 1 in Class C, also faces a road assignment at Ravenna. Class D's top-ranked Nelson hosts Red Cloud Friday night.

In games involving Lincoln teams this weekend, it's: Hastings (5-3) v. Lincoln Southeast (7-2), Friday night, Johnson Gym — This is the state's best Class A matchup this weekend. The 10th-rated Tigers are rolling and the Knights are trying to pick themselves up after Grand Island's knockout punch last weekend.

Papillon (7-3) at Lincoln East (6-3), Friday night — The Monarchs are looking at this game as the key to a possible top 10 rating. It's also pivotal in the Eastern 180 conference.

Millard (5-3) v. Lincoln Northeast (6-2), Friday night, Nebraska Wesleyan — Two of Millard's three losses were respectable performances against Omaha Burke (76-65) and East (69-62). Like Papillon, the Indians have the ability to create surprises.

Lincoln High (4-5) at Ralston (2-8), Friday night — If the Links don't snap their three-game losing streak in this one, they might find themselves reeling for another month.

Omaha Northwest (3-6) at Lincoln High (4-5), Saturday night — If things go right Friday night, the Links can return above .500 with another victory.

David City Aquinas (10-2) at Lincoln Plus X (1-8), Saturday night — Trying to junk an eight-game losing streak against a team of Aquinas' caliber isn't the best timing in the world.

Northeast (6-2) at Norfolk (3-5) — The Rockets can't be complacent about playing Norfolk on the road, and they know it.

East (6-3) at North Platte (3-3) — After three losses to rated teams in its first three games, North Platte has won three in a row and likely four by Saturday night, but East can't afford another loss.

Marquette Clobbers Creighton

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The second-ranked Marquette Warriors scored 10 straight points midway through the first half for a 30-19 lead and coasted to an easy 76-62 win over the Creighton Bluejays Wednesday night.

Earl Tatum and Butch Lee scored 18 points apiece to lead Marquette to its ninth straight win and 13th in 14 games.

The loss ended Creighton's five-game winning streak and left them with a 13-5 record.

Reserve forward Tim McConnell led the Bluejays with 14 points.

The Warriors held a 20-19 lead with 9:32 left in the first half when Tatum hit two long jump shots. Bo Ellis betted in a tip. Wee put in a rebound and Tatum hit another jumper. The half ended with Marquette on top, 42-29.

The Warriors stretched their lead to 22 points late in the second half when Bill Neary hit a jump shot to make the score 76-54.

Doane To Host Wayne

Crete — The Wayne Wildcats, stinging from a 118-117 double-overtime loss to Kearney Tuesday, will be looking to reverse an earlier loss to Doane when they meet the Tigers at Fuhrer Fieldhouse Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. in a non-conference game.

The Tigers, who defeated Wayne 69-67 at Wayne two weeks ago, recently saw an eight-game winning streak snap when they lost to Nebraska at Omaha, 110-84 Monday.

Doane actually scored more field goals than UNO in that game (37-36) but the Mavericks hit 38 of 44 free throws compared to the Tigers 10 of 16.

The game will offer the top two rebounders in the state with John Redmond of Wayne and Bob Taggart of Doane. Redmond averages 12.3 caroms per game, while Taggart is averaging 11.5.

But Redmond is also the third leading scorer in the state with a 19 points per game average.

NFL Players To Vote On Pro Bowl 'Boycott'

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Ed Garvey, head of the National Football League Players' Association, said Wednesday it will be up to the players to decide if Monday's Pro Bowl will go ahead as scheduled.

"They (the players) are going to vote (Thursday) and I don't know what course they will decide or what action they will take, if any," Garvey said.

The possibility of the game being cancelled arose earlier in a dispute over contributions to the player's pension fund.

Garvey said the owners have not put any money into the pension fund since 1972 because of a stalemate over the contract between the players and owners.

"We're concerned that the fund might be declared defunct unless a contribution is made," Garvey said.

"Our understanding is that the 1974 contribution is in escrow, so all they would have to do to take care of this immediate problem is to transfer that to the pension fund."

"It could easily be resolved if the owners would just make a pension payment," Garvey said.

He said it would "make things a lot easier" if each NFL club would put $170,000 into the pension fund, a total of $4.4 million.

Garvey denied he is trying to instigate a strike and stop the game. He said he was simply trying to "bring the players up to date on all the issues."

Players said they would meet with Garvey Thursday to discuss the situation.

However, several of the players contacted by newsmen said they planned to play.

"As far as I know we're planning to play," said Terry Metcalf of the St. Louis Cardinals.

"Everyone's planning on playing, otherwise they wouldn't have come."

"I'm planning on playing," said quarterback Jim Hart of the Cardinals. "I don't know the particulars of the negotiations. I just look forward to being with the men."

"I want to play, tired as I am I want to play," said safety Cliff Harris of the Dallas Cowboys. "We're going to hear from Garvey and I want to know what's going on."

Riley To Assume NSAA Post

Les Chamberlin, executive secretary for the Nebraska School Activities Association (NSAA) the past six years, will retire July 31.

NSAA Board of Control chairman Max Ingram of Bartley announced Wednesday that Jim Riley will succeed Chamberlin as executive secretary July 1.

Riley, former head basketball coach at Omaha Westside and Norfolk, has served as assistant executive secretary under Chamberlin the past six years.

Chamberlin, who will be 65-years-old next month, served nine years as an NSAA Board of Control member before he was named executive secretary.

"When I came into this office, it was a two-person operation," Chamberlin recalled Wednesday. "We've expanded to the point where it takes a crew of six to administer the duties."

Expansion was considerable under Chamberlin's directorship. "The expansion of girls athletics has been a highlight," he said. "Getting the football playoffs organized and started has been a highlight, too."

"We're also proud to have started statewide competition in speech and one-act plays," added Chamberlin. "The biggest regret has been the lack of a girls state basketball tournament until next year. I would have enjoyed being a part of that."

Nebraska has been among the national leaders in implementation of girls high school athletic programs.

"It's been advantageous starting early and getting ahead of the pack before girls athletics was demanded by Title IX," he said.

Chamberlin and his wife, Edna, will continue to live in Lincoln.

"I know I'm leaving this office in good hands," he said. "Jim is well-trained and well-equipped to handle the job. He's been here six years, knows the problems of the organization and how it operates."

Cipriano Displeased Despite NU Victory

Bv MARK GORDON
Star Sports Writer

Joe Cipriano hardly seemed like a winning basketball coach.

"We weren't ready to play in the second half. We were very fortunate to win," he said disconsolately after Nebraska's 68-67 victory Wednesday night over Oklahoma at the NU Coliseum.

"We got a poor effort defensively from some of our players," he said. "We shot so well in the first half (76.9 per cent from the field) that it had a lot to do with it."

What angered Cipriano was Nebraska holding a 14-point lead on five occasions in the first half, yet never really playing with enthusiasm or determination. It was just as he had warned earlier this week.

"We were out-played, out-rebounded and out-hustled. Thanks to the home crowd they gave us a lift when we needed it," he added. "Look I've told you before, if we don't play together, we're a very mediocre club. We've got to play at both ends of the court and that was proven tonight."

"Defensively, we really let down. We didn't stop them. We didn't do a good job inside. Nobody played that well." We were just standing around watching. Shooting leads to complacency."

Enough of the negative.

The eventual hero's role went to junior Ricky Harris who hit two free throws with 12 seconds left with Nebraska trailing, 67-66. The Sooners took that lead on two free throws from Billy Graham, who paced OU with 20 points.

"That's the first time I've been in a game where it relied on me," said the Denver junior. "I thought about the South Carolina game (where he missed a crucial free throw). Maybe this made up for it."

"We shoot a lot of free throws in practice, so it really isn't so bad. I knew I just couldn't psych myself out. I just relaxed, and I knew all along that they were going in when I shot them."

In achieving a 40-30 halftime lead, Nebraska fired in 20 of 26 field goal attempts. Oklahoma stayed close by hitting all 12 free throws.

One key factor in the first-half surge was junior forward Bob Siegel. The Fairbury native hit all six field goal attempts and had 12 points.

Yet, like most players, he was far from pleased with the effort.

"We weren't ready to play and if we're not ready to play we can't beat anybody."

Admitting he hasn't shot well occasionally

in the past, he discounted talk that he was not a proficient shooter.

"I really don't feel I'm not a shooter," he said after hitting all seven field goal attempts. "Just because there were some games that I didn't score a lot, that doesn't mean I can't shoot. Maybe I was looking forward to shooting more tonight."

Although taking game-high scoring honors with 23 points, Nebraska's senior guard Jerry Fort was forced to miss part of the game.

"I asked to be taken out since I was tired there in the second half. I don't know what happened. We had a hard time covering them."

"They (OU) sagged far back on defense and it was hard to get by them," he noted. "Then they got behind some picks and hit some baskets. We were just lucky to win."

The victory pushed Nebraska to 2-0 in Big Eight action and 11-4 overall. The loss dropped the Sooners to 0-2 in league play and 3-11.

The victory certainly proved Oklahoma has improved since the Big Eight Tournament in late December when Nebraska tripped the Sooners convincingly, 75-53.

"They all are better, especially Eddie Fields (OU guard who hit 10 points and earned 14 assists)," said Nebraska guard Steve Willis.

"The coaches told me to turn Fields. He was penetrating and it seemed like he had really worked on his ball-handling since the KC game."

"It seemed like he wasn't even looking at the basket, but he's really improved," the senior guard added.

The Huskers connected on 62.2 per cent of its field goals while OU hit on 56.5 per cent.

Nebraska travels to Colorado Saturday and Oklahoma State next Wednesday before returning to the NU Coliseum to meet league favorite Missouri on Jan. 31.

"We'll play a lot better at Colorado. We have to," said Siegel confidently.

Oklahoma's Bliss To Protest Officiating

By DAVE SITTLER

Just before Dave Bliss departed his assistant coaching position at Indiana for the head basketball job at Oklahoma last year, Indiana coach Bobby Knight gave the youthful Bliss some advice.

"You're 32 years old now and look 27," Knight told his protege. "Next year you'll be 33 and look 45."

"Next year" may have arrived Wednesday night at the Nebraska Coliseum. In only 12 seconds, Bliss probably added a few quick years not to mention

Asked if he was going to protest the game to the Big Eight conference Bliss said, "You bet your sweet (expletive deleted) I am."

Bliss didn't hesitate to explain why he thought the officials, John Overby and Roy Clymer, didn't whistle a foul against any Nebraska player in the final hectic moments.

"I'm a first year coach in the Big Eight and am playing a lot of freshman (four)," he said. "First year coaches with freshmen are not supposed to win games like this."

Continuing to reflect on the final moments Bliss said, "It's easy to make free throws when you're 20 points ahead. Just like it's easy to referee a game when a team is 20 points ahead."

"But I expect my players to perform under pressure when the game is close and I expect the same performance out of the officials."

If Nebraska's new sports center isn't ready to house the state high school basketball tournament Mar. 11, 12 and 13, the NSAA must have an alternate plan.

"The situation is touch and go," Rex Jones, an NSAA assistant executive secretary, said Wednesday. "We've already told the Board of Control we'll draw up schedules for both state tournament possibilities."

"I understand the floor man hasn't started laying the floor at the new place," Jones noted. "If he doesn't start by next Monday, I just don't know."

"We talked with Jim Ross (Nebraska's assistant athletic director, who will be in charge of the new sports center) last week and he said it depends on who you talk to as to when the place will be ready," Jones said. "Everyone has a different answer."

Whatever materializes, the NSAA plans at least some state tourney competition at the Coliseum. "It hasn't seen its last tournament game yet," Jones said.

The state tourney countdown continues, but the regular season rolls on. Class A's top-rated Grand Island plays at Fremont Friday night.

Class B's top-ranked Sidney plays at Ogallala Friday night. Wood River, No. 1 in Class C, also faces a road assignment at Ravenna. Class D's top-ranked Nelson hosts Red Cloud Friday night.

In games involving Lincoln teams this weekend, it's: Hastings (5-3) v. Lincoln Southeast (7-2), Friday night, Johnson Gym — This is the state's best Class A matchup this weekend. The 10th-rated Tigers are rolling and the Knights are trying to pick themselves up after Grand Island's knockout punch last weekend.

Papillion (7-3) at Lincoln East (6-3), Friday night — The Monarchs are looking at this game as the key to a possible top 10 rating. It's also pivotal in the Eastern I-80 Conference.

Millard (5-3) v. Lincoln Northeast (6-2), Friday night, Nebraska Wesleyan — Two of Millard's three losses were respectable performances against Omaha Burke (76-65) and East (69-62). Like Papillion, the Indians have the ability to create surprises.

Lincoln High (4-5) at Ralston (2-8), Friday night — If the Links don't snap their three-game losing streak in this one, they

Doane To Host Wayne

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Ed Garvey, head of the National Football League Players' Association, said Wednesday it will be up to the players to decide if Monday's Pro Bowl will go ahead as scheduled.

"They (the players) are going to vote (Thursday) and I don't know what course they will decide or what action they will take, if any," Garvey said.

The possibility of the game being cancelled arose earlier in a dispute over contributions to the player's pension fund.

Garvey said the owners have not put any money into the pension fund since 1972 because of a stalemate over the contract between the players and owners.

"We're concerned that the fund might be declared defunct unless a contribution is made," Garvey said.

"Our understanding is that the 1974 contribution is in escrow, so all they would have to do to take care of this immediate problem is to transfer that to the pension fund."

"It could easily be resolved if the owners would just make a pension payment," Garvey Tipoff: 7:30 p.m. Fuhrer Fieldhouse, Crete.

Crete — The Wayne Wildcats, stinging from a 118-117 double-overtime loss to Kearney Tuesday, will be looking to reverse an earlier loss to Doane when they meet the Tigers at Fuhrer Fieldhouse Thursday night at 7:30 p.m. in a non-conference game.

The Tigers, who defeated Wayne 69-67 at Wayne two weeks ago, recently saw an eight-game winning streak snap when they lost to Nebraska at Omaha, 110-84 Monday.

Doane actually scored more field goals than UNO in that game (37-36) but the Mavericks hit 38 of 44 free throws compared to the Tigers 10 of 16.

The game will offer the top two rebounders in the state with John Redmond of Wayne and Bob Taggart of Doane. Redmond averages 12.3 caroms per game, while Taggart is averaging 11.5.

But Redmond is also the third leading scorer in the state with a 19 points per game average.

said. He said it would "make things a lot easier" if each NFL club would put $170,000 into the pension fund, a total of $4.4 million.

Garvey denied he is trying to instigate a strike and stop the game. He said he was simply trying to "bring the players up to date on all the issues."

Players said they would meet with Garvey Thursday to discuss the situation.

However, several of the players contacted by newsmen said they planned to play.

"As far as I know we're planning to play," said Terry Metcalf of the St. Louis Cardinals. "Everyone's planning on playing, otherwise they wouldn't have come."

"I'm planning on playing," said quarterback Jim Hart of the Cardinals. "I don't know the particulars of the negotiations, I just look forward to being with the men."

"I want to play; tired as I am I want to play," said safety Cliff Harris of the Dallas Cowboys. "We're going to hear from Garvey and I want to know what's going on."

Trickey Resigns As ISU Coach

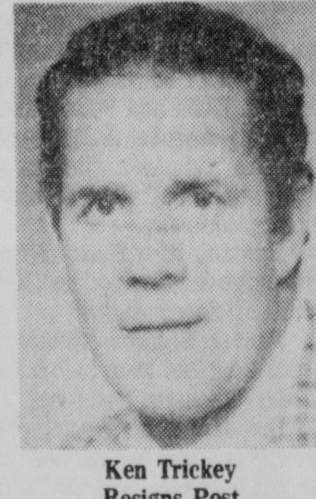

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Iowa State University lost its second basketball coach in two years Wednesday when Ken Trickey resigned because of "problems that prevent the basketball program from making the progress that we all want it to make."

He did not elaborate on the problems, but said Athletic Director Lou McCullough influenced him "in no way" to resign after only a year and a half as the Cyclone coach.

Coaching duties go to assistants Gus Guydon and Jack Sutter, the administration said, until a replacement for Trickey is found.

"In order for alumni and supporters of the program to all get behind the basketball program, we felt that a coaching change for the next year would be beneficial," explained Trickey, a native of Cairo, Ill.

Trickey managed only a 1-14 record this season and 1-1 in the Big Eight Conference. In his first year of coaching in 1975, the Cyclones finished at 10-16.

Ken Trickey Resigns Post

"We have a young team who has not won as many games as all of us would have liked in my year and a half," said Trickey. "And I hope they will understand my decision and go on and play like I know they can play," he added in a letter to the ISU administration.

The ISU performance was in sharp contrast to Trickey's record at Oral Roberts University, Tulsa, Okla., where his mark from 1969-74 was 118-23.

He was voted National Basketball Coach of the Year in 1972 by the American Football and Basketball Coaches Conference.

Although his plans are indefinite, Trickey assured an interviewer that getting a job has not been a problem in the past.

"It's really funny," he said. "I got back in the office today. I had a call about a possible job, and I've never had any trouble getting a job."

Bliss To Protest Officiating

Bliss did find solace in the fact his club battled back from a 14 point deficit in the first half. And he was impressed with Nebraska guard Jerry Fort who hit 8 of 9 shots in the first half.

"God couldn't have stopped Jerry Fort in the first half," Bliss said. "He's an exceptional player."

Clemson Upsets Maryland

might find themselves reeling for another month.

Omaha Northwest (3-6) at Lincoln High (4-5), Saturday night — If things go right Friday night, the Links can return above .500 with another victory.

David City Aquinas (10-2) at Lincoln Pius X (1-8), Saturday night — Trying to junk an eight-game losing streak against a team of Aquinas' caliber isn't the best timing in the world.

Northeast (6-2) at Norfolk (3-5) — The Rockets can't be complacent about playing Norfolk on the road, and they know it.

East (6-3) at North Platte (3-3) — After three losses to rated teams in its first three games, North Platte has won three in a row and likely four by Saturday night, but East can't afford another loss.

A Sports Roundup

FOOTBALL

Calvin Jones, a former University of Washington star, has told Denver, he would like to go to the Seattle Seahawks.

Quarterback Jesse Freitas, the San Diego Chargers' player representative, asked NFL players and owners to resolve their differences.

Miami Dolphins owner Joe Robbie is interested in moving his professional football team about 15-20 north of its present Orange Bowl home. The proposed site is in Broward County between Dade and Palm Beach counties.

Ray Schoenke, the 34-year-old swingman of the Washington Redskins offensive line, announced his retirement from professional football to devote full time attention to his life insurance company.

Running back Rocky Bleier of the Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers got the "Nice Guy" award at the annual Red Smith All-Sports dinner.

Denver Broncos offensive line coach Jerry Frei said he would leave the team to join John McKay's staff with the Tampa Bay expansion franchise.

Dr. James Zumbeke, president of Southern Methodist University, said Nevada-Las Vegas football coach Ron Meyer has not been offered a similar post at SMU, but added "he is a candidate."

In the past two days Homer Rice has begun revamping the Rice University athletic department and disclosed he will soon become athletic director as well as head football coach.

Elroy Morand, offensive coordinator on the Wichita State football staff last year, was named offensive back field coach at the University of Illinois.

University of Kentucky running back Sonny Collins testified a jacket he lent to former University tight end Elmore Stephens was returned to him after an alleged kidnapping and murder with blood on it and with several holes.

BASEBALL

Bob Short, former owner of the Washington Senators, conceded there was some kind of a commitment by baseball to the Seattle area made by the American League.

National League president Charles S. "Chub" Feeney said he was pulling for Mayor George Moscone in his fight to keep the Giants in San Francisco.

Robin Roberts and Bob Lemon, two of baseball's premier pitchers during the 1950's, headed the list of candidates awaiting word on their possible election to the baseball Hall of Fame.

Kelly Ann Martin, daughter of New York Yankees manager Billy Martin, was sentenced to three years in prison for trying to smuggle cocaine out of Colombia.

BASKETBALL

Buffalo Braves owner Paul L. Snyder said he intends to sell the team to people who will keep the NBA team in Buffalo, but a Florida group indicates it is ready to buy the club. Coliseum Associates of Miami officials indicated they do not have an "ironclad agreement" with Snyder, however.

Bill Musselman's nine-week stint as coach of the Virginia Squires has been terminated because of his apparent split with both the players and the front office.

Elvin Hayes, the Washington Bullets' leading scorer, has a strained ligament in his right wrist and, depending on how it responds, could be out of action for a week or 10 days.

Oscar Williams, who was suspended from the Utah State University basketball team, was arrested and charged with burglary.

Veteran Chicago Bulls guard Jerry Sloan underwent knee surgery and is lost to the Bulls for the rest of the NBA season.

OTHER SPORTS

Former heavyweight champion George Foreman sparred three rounds against two opponents, his last workout session in preparation for his bout against Ron Lyle Saturday.

West German Albert Burger narrowly defeated Italian ace Piero Gros in an international giant slalom race which did not count for World Cup points.

Some 70 skiers from across the United States and Norway will race on a three-mile cross country course Feb. 1. All of them are blind.

Earl N. Risky, credited with the origination of paddleball, died at the age of 77.

An autopsy showed that the death of Keith Porter, a 16-year-old Minnesota high school student, was a result of cardiac arrest.

Italy's Sandro Munari led the Lancia Stratos team into a commanding position Wednesday, holding the first three places when the second stage of the Monte Carlo Rally ended.

LSC Third In Ram Meet

Bellevue Nips Dana, 87-85

BELLEVUE, Neb. (AP)—Bellevue pushed up a 12-point lead in the first ten minutes, slipped, recovered and finally edged Dana College 87-85 in college basketball here Wednesday night.

After taking the early lead, the Bruins went cold, and Dana moved ahead to take a 48-46 half-time lead.

But in the second half Bellevue came back with straight shooting at the free throw line.

With eight seconds left in the game, the Vikings missed a chance to tie the contest.

Dana's Stan Gustafson was the game's top scorer with 24 points, followed by teammate Steve Williams with 22 points.

Five Bellevue players hit double figures, led by freshman substitute Mike Burkhardt with 22 points. Fred Nelson and Bob Drake each added 17 points for the Bruins.

Dana (85) Gustafson 24, Williams 22, Nelson 17, Smith 14, Garlick 12, Rieschels 11.
Bellevue (87) Nelson 17, Smith 14, Garlick 12, Rieschels 11.

Halftime: Dana 48, Bellevue 46.

Both teams were plagued with turnovers, turning in 25 each. Pius X led the rebounding statistics, with 57 to Fremont's 27.

Pius X, now 7-2, will play at East High Tuesday night.

Fremont hit 10 field goals for 22 points and pulled in seven rebounds. Mary Mulligan led the rebounding for Pius X with 16 cars. Kim Hermes, who contributed eight points, pulled down 15 rebounds. Morgan pumped in 10 points.

Deb Poehling, the only Fremont girl to hit double figures, put in 11 points.

Pius X started the game in a full court zone pressure defense and switched defensive patterns each quarter.

It's All Outdoors

By Tom Vint
Outdoor Editor

Upcoming Event Time

The winter calendar is starting to fill my "in" box so it must be time to enlighten readers on what's coming up.

Dog trials are on the horizon for the new season. The Nebraska Dog and Hunt Club will start the parade with a Sunday trial at Wagon Train Lake east of Hickman. The Nebraska Brittany Club is not far behind with a Feb. 1 trial at the National Guard Grounds at Mead. And the state's raccoon hunters will have a Feb. 7 trial with the Tri-Valley Coon Hunters' Assn. trial at Orleans.

Conservationists should keep their eyes on two happenings. One is the Feb. 7 public symposium hosted by the Nebraska Wildlife Federation at the Cornhusker Hotel in Lincoln. Entitled, "At the River's Edge," the day-long conference will look at the river and related land planning in the state.

The other conservation happening is a series of Land Use Planning seminars in Nebraska. The seminars, beginning Saturday in Wayne, will be conducted statewide at Kearney State College (Feb. 7), Concordia College in Seward (Feb. 21), Bellevue College (Mar. 6), Nebraska Western College in Scottsbluff (Mar. 20) and Mid Plains Community College in North Platte (Apr. 3). A panel of the state's leading personalities in conservation and agriculture will head the seminars.

For the fishing fans in the audience, grab your pencils, the Lincoln fishing classes are coming. The final year of the popular seminar series begins Feb. 9 with bass fisherman Bobby Murray, followed by Jim Rogers, Doug Swisher, Al Lindner, Jack McKearin and Chuck Roberts, and ends with Patty and Dan Gopen on March 15. All are Monday night classes are co-sponsored by the Parks and Recreation Dept. and Surplus Center. Look for more Sunday on the Outdoor Page.

More Miscellaneous

The Evinrude outdoor marine motor people have introduced a new fishing club geared to honor fish catches during the year. "Evinrude Anglers" across the country will be fishing for Master Angler chevrons in nearly all of the freshwater, and some salt water, game fish categories.

According to a press release from Evinrude, the club will also have an annual fish-off. Over $5,000 in prizes will be awarded at a national fish-off after a series of qualifying regional fish-offs.

For more information on the club and its awards program, contact your local Evinrude motor dealer or write: Evinrude Anglers Club, Evinrude Motors, P.O. Box 663, Milwaukee, Wis. 53201.

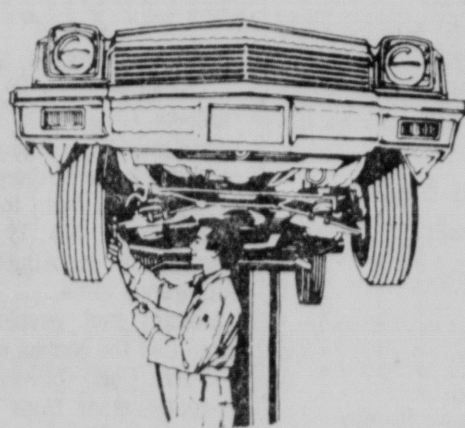

The shooting world also has a couple of new commodities. The Browning shotgun people have released a new B-2000 gas-operated automatic shotgun in a 20-gauge model. It's been on the market as a 12-gauge for two years.

Winchester-Western has produced a special skeet load for clay target shooters. The special double A load, available in 12 gauge only to date, is intended to produce a more open pattern with its newly designed plastic wad. Pattern tests have it opening up 5 to 7 per cent more than the standard double A.

Just in case you're interested, there will be the annual Custer State Park, Pierre, S.D., buffalo auction Feb. 7. That's right, buffalo auction. Some 222 buffalo will be offered for sale at the 1:30 p.m. auction. All animals have been disease tested say the state officials. Cash terms only. No refunds for bum steers.

Radio Licenses Rehearing Nixed

Washington (AP) — The U.S. Appeals Court has denied Star Stations Inc. a rehearing on the Federal Communications Commission's denial of license renewal for five radio stations owned principally by Don W. Burden.

The brief court order also denied Burden's request for stay of the FCC ruling so he can sell the stations to minority groups.

The FCC last Jan. 30 denied renewals of licenses for WIFE-AM-FM in Indianapolis, KOIL-AM-FM in Omaha, Neb., and KISN, Vancouver, Wash.

Radio Licenses

Rehearing Nixed
 Washington (AP) — The U.S. Appeals Court has denied Star Stations Inc. a rehearing on the Federal Communications Commission's denial of license renewal for five radio stations owned principally by Don W. Burden.

The brief court order also denied Burden's request for stay of the FCC ruling so he can sell the stations to minority groups. The FCC last Jan. 30 denied renewals of licenses for WIFE-AM-FM in Indianapolis, KOIL-AM-FM in Omaha, Neb., and KISN, Vancouver, Wash.

Small Loan Interest Hike Clears Second Hurdle

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature Wednesday stamped 29-10 second stage approval on a bill to increase maximum interest rates on installment loans over $1,000.

The proposal, LB477, is scheduled to show up next on final reading.

Sponsored by the Banking, Commerce and Insurance Committee, the measure increases the maximum amount which small loan companies can lend from $3,000 to $5,000, and extends the maximum repayment period from 36 to 72 months.

Maximum interest charges of 30% on the first $300 and 24% on the next $200 would remain unchanged.

But the bill permits a maximum 18% charge on the amount of the loan from $500 to $5,000, whereas current law limits the 18% interest rate to an amount from $500 to $1,000.

A 12% maximum interest charge is now in effect for the amount of loans over $1,000.

The change is needed to adjust to new economic conditions, Banking Chairman John Murphy of South Sioux City said. Rates have not been altered since 1963, he said.

Without such a bill, Sen. Ralph Kelly of Grand Island said, the small loan industry would "starve to death."

A number of senators sharply opposed the bill.

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha tried to kill it, arguing that the measure benefits lenders who are "loan sharks, shysters, thugish, very close to being crooks."

Like pawnbrokers and bail bondsmen, they are part of "the whole seedy side of this society," he said, preying on people who are financially dependent.

"It's an industry which makes its living by exploiting people... creating a class of dependent people who can never get out" of their financial problems paying such interest rates, Chambers said.

His motion was rejected on a 7-30 count.

Sen. John Cavanaugh of Omaha said the Legislature has an obligation not to allow poor borrowers to be "gouged."

License For Sharks?

Has it merely "taken the loan sharks off the streets and given them a license," he wondered.

Sen. Richard Lewis of Holbrook said the 30% charge already allowed on the smallest loans is "an exorbitant figure."

Sen. Orval Keyes of Springfield noted that it is "the people who are least able to operate in our economy" who are saddled with the highest interest rates.

But Sens. Robert Clark of Sidney and Loran Schmit of Bellwood said failure to enact the bill would deny credit to many people who need money.

The proposed interest rates are "reasonable," Schmit said.

No Other Choice

People who cannot obtain credit at the bank must depend on small loan companies, Clark said.

They pay higher interest rates because they are greater risks, Sen. Ron Cope of Kearney noted.

Economic conditions mandate the higher maximums, Sens. Eugene Mahoney and Warren Swigart of Omaha said.

Here is the vote to send the bill on its way to final reading:

For: Burbach, Carsten, Clark, Cope, Dickinson, Duls, Dworak, Fitzgerald, Hasebrook, Johnson, Kelly, Kime, Koch, F. Lewis, Luedtke, Mahoney, Marsh, Mills, Moylan, Murphy, Nichol, Rasmussen, Rumery, Schmit, Skarda, Stoney, Stull Swigart, Syas

Against: Anderson, Barnett, Burrows, Cavanaugh, Chambers, Fowler, Keyes, R. Lewis, Maresh, Warner

Absent or Not Voting: Bereuter, DeCamp, George, Goodrich, Kennedy, Kremer, Marvel, Savage, Simpson, Wiltse

Labor Court Salary Bill Fails In Committee Vote

By The Associated Press

A bill that would raise the salary of judges on the Court of Industrial Relations failed to advance from the Labor Committee after a 3-3 vote Wednesday.

A bill that contained a similar pay raise was vetoed by Gov. J. Exon last year, partly because it was in a measure that also called for mandatory arbitration of some labor disputes.

This year's bill, LB710, relates only 50 salaries. It is sponsored by Lincoln Sen. Roland Luedtke.

Sens. Tom Fitzgerald of Omaha, Myron Rumery of North Platte and Frank Lewis of Bellevue voted for the bill. Voting against were chairman Richard Maresh of Milligan, John Murphy of South Sioux City and Otto Kime of Valentine. Newman Grove Sen. Tom Kennedy was absent.

Senators opposing the bill said they wanted more information.

Industrial court judges would get $130 each day they worked under the bill. They now receive $75.

Music news is covered thoroughly in the "Sunday Journal and Star."

George Still Trying For Appointed PSC

By The Associated Press

State Sen. Walter George of Blair said Wednesday he is still trying to drum up support for changing Nebraska's Public Service Commission from an elective body to appointive.

George disclosed before the Legislature began work Jan. 7 that he would propose an amendment to the State Constitution to change the method of selecting the regulatory agency's five members.

Kremer Backs U.S. Amendment Against Abortion

Sen. Maurice Kremer of Aurora introduced a resolution Wednesday urging the Congress to submit an antiabortion amendment to the Constitution for approval by the state legislatures.

The resolution says the Nebraska "Legislature expressly deprecates the destruction of unborn human lives."

Sens. Gary Anderson of Axtell and Richard Marvel of Hastings introduced a resolution opposing the closing of Nebraska post offices.

Disabled Would Qualify For Aid In Six Months

By United Press International

A person determined to have a condition under which he would be physically or mentally disabled and unable to work for not less than six months would qualify for assistance under LB454, which received 31-1 first round approval in the Legislature Wednesday.

Sen. John Cavanaugh of Omaha said the bill seeks to continue past state criteria which are not the same as those followed by the federal government. Federal standards specify the time of expected disability has to be one year before a person is considered eligible for the aid.

The proposal has an estimated fiscal impact of $1.7 million, of which $161,000 would be furnished by the counties.

State Agencies Disagree With Historical Park Plan

After meetings and a consultant's study, the State Game and Parks Commission and the Nebraska State Historical Society appear to be as far apart as ever on the subject of historical park management.

In fact, the sole area of agreement the two agencies did reach was that neither agreed with consultant Merrill Mattes' 10-year plan for developing the state's historical resources. Both said they have higher priorities which make Mattes' proposals for acquisitions too costly.

Nevertheless, each praised the concept of Mattes' recommendations which centered around the theme of the Great Platte River Road. Mattes had also suggested giving the society control over historical aspects of areas operated by the commission.

That recommendation has been written into LB835, and the commission will oppose that bill.

Bob Killen, commission historian, said cooperation between the two agencies is a long-term answer.

"You can legislate from hell to Broken Bow, but ultimately, it will come down to whatever the two agencies can agree on," he said.

George disclosed before the Legislature began work Jan. 7 that he would propose an amendment to the State Constitution to change the method of selecting the regulatory agency's five members.

He said Wednesday, however, he is trying to get a full committee to introduce the bill. George missed the opportunity to offer it himself, unless he obtains a suspension of the rules, because the deadline for introductions by individual senators was Tuesday.

George indicated he was wary of introducing it himself because of editorials in Lincoln newspapers pointing out he is an employee of the HunTel Telephone Utilities system, which is regulated by the commission.

Kremer Backs U.S. Amendment Against Abortion

Sen. Maurice Kremer of Aurora introduced a resolution Wednesday urging the Congress to submit an antiabortion amendment to the Constitution for approval by the state legislatures.

The resolution says the Nebraska "Legislature expressly deplores the destruction of unborn human lives."

Sens. Gary Anderson of Axtell and Richard Marvel of Hastings introduced a resolution opposing closing of Nebraska post offices.

George says he has no more conflict of interest than Bellwood Sen. Loran Schmit, a farmer who heads the Agriculture Committee, or South Sioux City Sen. John Robert Murphy, a bank board director who chairs the Banking Committee.

George challenged newspaper editorial writers to run an informal survey to determine how much the public really knows about the commission.

He said in theory he agrees that members of the commission should be elected, as advocated by some, but added it doesn't work in practice because the public isn't properly informed.

A person determined to have a condition under which he would be physically or mentally disabled and unable to work for not less than six months would qualify for assistance under LB454, which received 31-1 first round approval in the Legislature Wednesday.

Sen. John Cavanaugh of Omaha said the bill seeks to continue past state criteria which are not the same as those followed by the federal government. Federal standards specify the time of expected disability has to be one year before a person is considered eligible for the aid.

The proposal has an estimated fiscal impact of $1.7 million, of which $161,000 would be furnished by the counties.

In arguing for the bill, Bellevue Sen. Frank Lewis said a disability lasting six months "is more than a slight discomfort" and the person suffering it should be given compassionate consideration.

Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers, after several lawmakers questioned the bill's cost, said $1.7 million is not a large sum. In any case, "We shouldn't discuss an issue as this in terms of dollars," he said.

Sen. Steve Fowler of Lincoln said the program formerly cost about $6 million before the federal government moved in and said it would take it over, but in so doing it changed the criteria for eligibility.

The bill "provides relief at the time the disability exists," he said.

Poultry, Egg Check-Off Bill Clears Hurdle

Legislation to establish a poultry and egg check-off system in Nebraska cleared its initial Unicameral floor hurdle Wednesday.

State senators voted 30-1 first-round approval on LB514, the proposed Poultry and Egg Resources Act backed by the Legislature's Agriculture Committee.

The bill would allow a nickel check-off on each case of eggs produced and a three-cent check-off on each turkey raised in the state.

The money raised would be used for research and promotion of the products to benefit the producers funding the system through the check-off plan.

SPEED READING COURSE TO BE TAUGHT IN LINCOLN & OMAHA AREA

The Iowa Reading Lab. of Des Moines, will offer a 4 week course in speed reading to a limited number of qualified people in the Lincoln & Omaha area. A person is required to attend only one 2 1/2 hour class per week, on the evening of their choice for 4 weeks only. The course guarantees to triple the person's reading speed with a marked improvement in comprehension and concentration. The guarantee, however, is a bare minimum as the average graduate will read 7 to 10 times faster. They can read almost any average book in less than one hour.

For those who would like additional information, a series to free, one hour orientation lectures have been scheduled. At these free lectures the course will be explained in complete detail, including classroom procedures, instruction methods, class schedule and a special 1 time only introductory tuition that is less than one-third the cost of similar courses. You must attend only one of the free meetings for complete details. You may attend any of the meetings for information about the Lincoln or Omaha classes.

These orientations are open to the public, above age 14, (persons under 18 should be accompanied by a parent if possible.)

If you have always wanted to be a speed reader but found the cost prohibitive or the course too time consuming... now you can! Just by attending 1 evening per week for 4 short weeks you can read 7 to 10 times faster, concentrate better, comprehend more.

If you are a student who would like to make A's instead of B's or C's or if you are a business person who wants to stay abreast of today's everchanging accelerating world, then this course is an absolute necessity. These Free one hour meetings will be held at the following times and places:

LINCOLN
Tues. Jan. 20 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m.
Wed. Jan. 21 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m.
Thurs. Jan. 22 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m.
Fri. Jan. 23 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m.
Sat. Jan. 24 at 10:30 a.m. and again at 1:30 p.m.
Mon. Jan. 26 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m.

These meetings will be held in the conference room of the Radisson Cornhusker Hotel, 13th and "M" St. Lincoln

OMAHA
Tues. Jan. 27 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m.

Fri. Jan. 30 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m.
Sat. Jan. 31 at 10:30 a.m. and again at 1:30 p.m.
Mon. Feb. 2 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m.

These meetings will be held in the conference room of the Y.M.C.A. downtown, 430 South 20th St. Omaha.

If you are a business-man, student, housewife or executive, this course which took 5 years of intensive research to develop, is a must. You can read 7-10 times faster, comprehend more, concentrate better, and remember longer. Students are offered an additional discount. This course can be taught to industry or civic groups at "Group rates" upon request. Be sure to attend whichever free orientation that fits in your schedule.

Work Release Control May Switch

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature's Judiciary Committee Wednesday advanced for floor action a bill which would take away the Parole Board's control over the prison work release program and vest it solely with the prison administration.

LB639 was advanced on a 4-2 vote, after Sen. Loran Schmitt of Bellwood switched his initial vote against the measure.

Constitutional questions exist about the Legislature's authority to do that, pointed out the bill's advocate, Sen. Gary Anderson, and its critic, former Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer.

Meyer said prisoners on work and educational release programs as well as furloughs are not under the custody of the prison administration and hence constitutionally are controlled by the Parole Board.

A majority of committee members, however, agreed with Sen. Roland Luedtke's assessment that Meyer's definition of parole is "strained."

They noted that when a prisoner does not return to a work release center as he is supposed to, he is charged with escape, not parole violation. In addition, prison officials monitor prisoners' activities on work release, not the Parole Board, they said.

Rather than a "parole," Anderson said work release should be interpreted as a different level of custody.

Meyer said he is "highly in favor" of work release programs, but said he preferred that discretion over which prisoners participate remain with the five-member board rather than will one man, the director of correctional services.

"The only thing I'm worried about is that the public might get upset (if crimes are committed by work release offenders) and totally eliminate it," Meyer said.

"I don't believe any one person should have that authority," he said.

Sen. Ernie Chambers of Omaha saw the bill as an improvement over the present situation where the Parole Board is "flawed and fallible" and consists of people who are "moved by vindictiveness."

In reply to Meyer's comments about LB639's constitutionality, Chambers noted the Nebraska Supreme Court recently sided with his interpretation of a 1975 law easing penalties for speeders on the Interstate and not with Atty. Gen. Paul Douglas' view.

In other action, the committee advanced Sen. William Nichol's LB655, a minor bill dealing with deferred compensation programs domiciled in other states. It held for study Sen. Gerald Koch's LB633, which would make it a felony to carry a concealed weapon in the commission of another felony.

Committee members questioned the bill on two points: first, its compatibility with the proposed revision of the state's criminal code; and secondly, whether it accomplished what Koch intends.

responsible to the director of the Nebraska corrections department and would not come under local control.

The administrator would be paid by the local county board, which Headley said would put a financial burden on many counties, particularly sparsely populated areas without prisoner facilities.

He said the measure is "assinine and ridiculous, and I think we should fight it with everything we can." He said the bill was an example of state government attempting to exert state government over local government.

Headley said Hall County has been operating a work release program for county prisoners for several years. He said he resented the fact that the state would send in prisoners from other counties who would be working in competition with "our people."

Unicam Will Work On Abe's Birthday

A move by some state senators to take off Lincoln's birthday, Feb. 12, deadlocked 23-23 Wednesday and lost.

Sen. Shirley Marsh of Lincoln said in offering the motion to take off that day it would be a good time for senators to catch up on bills and other matters. Lincoln's birthday is a state holiday, she said, and it made no sense to have state employees on the job just because the Unicameral was in session.

Sen. Ralph Kelly unsuccessfully suggested the following day, a Friday, also be taken off.

Speaker Jules Burch of Hartington said after the motion lost

he would ask the governor to send all non-legislative employees home even though the Unicameral will be in session.

Agencies maintain skeleton crews on holidays the Legislature is in session to handle lawmakers' questions.

Burbach said he felt having the legislative staff available was enough, so that other employees could take the day off.

SPEED READING COURSE TO BE TAUGHT IN LINCOLN & OMAHA AREA

The Iowa Reading Lab, of Des Moines, will offer a 4 week course in speed reading to a limited number of qualified people in the Lincoln & Omaha area. A person is required to attend only one 2 1/2 hour class per week, on the evening of their choice for 4 weeks only. The course guarantees to triple the person's reading speed with a marked improvement in comprehension and concentration. The guarantee, however, is a bare minimum as the average graduate will read 7 to 10 times faster. They can read almost any average book in less than one hour.

These Free one hour meetings will be held at the following times and places:

LINCOLN
Tues. Jan. 20 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m.
Wed. Jan. 21 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m.
Thurs. Jan. 22 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m.
Fri. Jan. 23 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m.
Sat. Jan. 24 at 10:30 a.m. and again at 1:30 p.m.
Mon. Jan. 26 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m.

These meetings will be held in the conference room of the Radisson Cornhusker Hotel, 13th and "M" St. Lincoln

OMAHA
Tues. Jan. 27 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m.
Wed. Jan. 28 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m.
Thurs. Jan. 29 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m.
Fri. Jan. 30 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m.
Sat. Jan. 31 at 10:30 a.m. and again at 1:30 p.m.
Mon. Feb. 2 at 6:30 and again at 8:30 p.m.

These meetings will be held in the conference room of the Y.M.C.A. downtown, 430 South 20th St. Omaha.

For those who would like additional information, a series to free, one hour orientation lectures have been scheduled. At these free lectures the course will be explained in complete detail, including classroom procedures, instruction methods, class schedule and a special 1 time only introductory tuition that is less than one-third the cost of similar courses. You must attend only one of the free meetings for complete details. You may attend any of the meetings for information about the Lincoln or Omaha classes.

These orientations are open to the public, above age 14, (persons under 18 should be accompanied by a parent if possible.)

If you have always wanted to be a speed reader but found the cost prohibitive or the course too time consuming... now you can! Just by attending 1 evening per week for 4 short weeks you can read 7 to 10 times faster, concentrate better; comprehend more.

If you are a student who would like to make A's instead of B's or C's or if you are a business person who wants to stay abreast of today's everchanging accelerating world, then this course is an absolute ne-

$31,528,707 in interest paid to area savers

Almost unbelievable! In the year ended December 31, 1975, $31,528,707 was paid to Commercial Federal savers — money that was often reinvested to earn more interest at Commercial Federal . . . or put into circulation to help keep the economy moving. $31,528,707! One of the largest "payrolls" in the area — money paid for letting money work . . . not for hours of toil!

$150,610,234 in new mortgage loans in 1975

Today, too, there are 25,772 loans outstanding . . . for $596,515,405 — $150,610,234 made in the last year alone! Quite a contribution to the economy of the region — making home ownership possible for thousands, keeping money circulating from borrower to builder to laborer to retailer to professional man, and beyond . . . "recycled" money!

Conveniently located facilities to serve you

Serving Nebraska Land, with 22 offices providing a stable base for each area served! Friendly people, convenient hours. And at most offices — drive-up windows and free parking. Pretty hard to beat!

First Federal's 1975 investment in housing throughout the state was $72.1 million. It holds such mortgages in 91 of the 93 Nebraska counties. The association's 19,621 mortgages are a $465.3 million investment.

During the year $1.4 million was added from profits to reserves, resulting in a reserve total of $28.5 million.

Two offices were opened in Lincoln, bringing the office total to 16.

Whittaker said 1975 was one of the most successful years in the association's 75-year history, with record loan and savings volume. Earnings on net worth were 12.9%.

State Federal has offices in Beatrice, Lincoln, Hastings and McCook. It has more than 50,000 savers.

State Federal provided home building funds totaling $62.8 million during the year, primarily to family dwellers.

The association began building an office building in McCook during 1975. It is planning new facilities for its Southeast Lincoln branch. The firm has four offices in Lincoln.

The association introduced a Tele-Pay Service during 1975, which allows customers to pay certain bills by telephone through a savings account.

State Federal also expanded its consumer loan department. It now has nearly $19 million in loans for home improvements, mobile homes and installment sales.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Thursday, January 22, 1976

Pisces can be secretive, versatile, sensitive, indecisive, artistic and in constant search for love. The native also is the less fortunate, is wonderful to have around during periods of recuperation, can be counted on to have valid hunches and to demonstrate ESP. Pisces earns money with Aries, has secret doubts concerning Aquarius, is physically attracted to Cancer, travels long distances with Scorpio, signs contracts with Virgo. This can be a power year for Pisces, with September indicated as an outstanding month.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Friend aids in extricating you from what could be a red tape, legal tangle. Consolidate - gather forces together. Highlight security. Deal with experienced, business person. Get property appraisal. Cancer, Capricorn might be in picture.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Basic issues can no longer be shunted aside, delayed or substituted. Face issues squarely, including health, employment, special services. Gemini, Sagittarius could figure prominently. Keep recent resolutions - for your own good!

♊️ (May 21-June 20): Obtain hint from Taurus message. Be "on the square." Means don't equivocate. Say what you mean - and mean it. Member of opposite sex may want to play word games. Don't compound the error. Be sure of sources, quotations.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be ready for change of scenery, variety of experiences, messages which could lead to travel opportunities. Gemini, Virgo individuals are in picture. Money of partner or mate becomes major consideration.

♌️ (July 23-Aug. 22): Hold off on decisions - take time to be analytical. Impatient relative should be ignored. Be diplomatic, not weak. Travel plans are not set - long-range project requires review, especially where advertising or publishing is concerned.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): See as is, not as you wish people and persons might be. Steer clear of wishful thinking, self-deception. Someone tries to get something for nothing - and you could be prime target. Know it and keep guard in ready position.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You are able to overturn plans which were basically unfair. You gain support, are capable now of setting long-range policy. Member of opposite sex does care and makes no secret of it. Capricorn, Cancer persons figure in important ways.

♏️ (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You can learn, publish, interpret, gain respect for ability to interpolate and to reach understanding-in-depth. You close transaction. You gain added recognition. One who is selfish does about-face and insists that you receive credit due. Accept!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Get started in new direction. Welcome contacts, chances for added independence. Leo Aquarius could be in picture. Accent on lovers' quarrels, creative endeavors, reconciliations, challenges and a renewed understanding of your own capabilities.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): What appears a setback is merely a caution light. Get second wind. Review procedures. Cash flow is but temporarily impeded. You'll get news which renews faith. Older individual is not against you - you will know it and benefit from wise counsel.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Light touch brings best results. Means go slow and easy. If you insist on forcing issues, you could be in for rude awakening. Gemini, Sagittarius persons play important roles. Accent on plan which would enable you to be free of local restrictions. Message will be clarified!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You may have to fear down for purpose of rebuilding. Aquarius, Leo and Scorpio are in picture. Accent on necessity to dig beneath surface indications. A mystery will be solved - you'll know where you stand, especially where money is concerned.

IF JAN. 22 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you never follow the crowd. You are a specialist, an individual, unique and inventive. You are unorthodox, intrigued with the unknown. Scorpio persons play important roles in your life. New project succeeds this year, with July your most significant month of 1976.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
